PREFACE

IN presenting the seventeenth annual volume of the Literary Year-Book—the first to be published by Messrs. John Ouseley, Limited—attention is drawn to certain changes and new features in the publication.

To facilitate reference to the various sections, the book has been divided into four parts. The full list of Contents will readily show in what Part any desired section is to be found, while a copious Index (page vii) gives, in addition, a brief explanation of the matter contained in each section.

The Index of Authors, which first appeared in the issue for 1908, has now disappeared from our pages, as, judging from the criticism which has been passed upon it, this section was unsatisfactory and, perhaps, illogical. The lists of Foreign Publishers, Societies, etc., have also been omitted, partly because of the difficulty experienced in keeping those sections up to date, owing to the delays, etc., in correspondence, and partly to reduce the work of editing, which has become very heavy, owing to the considerable increase in the size of the Literary Year-Book during the past five years.

The space thus saved has been devoted to some new features, which the Editor trusts will be found of more general usefulness—namely, a Directory of Book and Magazine Illustrators, and assistance towards making this Directory as representative and useful in its particular sphere as the existing Directory of Authors, will be welcome.

Another new feature is a table setting forth examples of the various type-faces in use, with an explanatory introduction. For the information contained in this table and in the typographical section we are indebted to Mr. T. C. Jacobi, and tender our best thanks for his kind assistance.

Our thanks are also due to Mr. G. H. Thring for his assistance in connection with the information concerning the Nobel Prizes.

We wish particularly to draw the attention of authors and others to the fact that information intended for our next issue must reach us before October 1 next. Notwithstanding our notice to this effect inserted in the Preface each year, we constantly receive matter for insertion long after this date, with the result that disappointment is caused by its non-appearance. Owing to the great amount of matter in the Literary Year-Book, it is impossible to keep its pages open after this date, and at the same time have it ready for publication at the proper time.

REVIEW OF 1912

(EVENTS ARE ARRANGED CHRONOLOGICALLY)

AMONGST the New-Year Honours announced on January 1 occurred the names of the following: Sir Valentine Chirol; Sir Rider Haggard; Professor Sir Henry Jones; Sir Henry A. Miers; Sir Frederick Wedmore; Sir Bertram Windle; Sir Edward Tylor; Sir Samuel Keightley; and Sir William Fletcher Barrett—the honour of Knighthood. A C.B. was conferred upon Edmund Kerchever Chambers, author of The Medieval Stage, The Tudor Revels and other volumes.

A deputation on demoralizing literature, organized by the "National Council of Public Morals," was received on January 23 by Mr. McKenna, the Home Secretary, at the Home Office. The deputation was introduced by Mr. St. Loe Strachey, editor of the Spectator, and included many influential names in the publishing and journalistic world. We looked in vain, however, for the name of a single man of letters, authors being entirely unrepresented—an omission which robbed the deputation of much of its authority to speak on the subject. Perhaps it is for this reason that, while Mr. McKenna expressed himself anxious to carry out the wishes of the deputation, the promised Bill has apparently been dropped.

To celebrate the centenary of the birth of Charles Dickens (February 7), a special Dickens' Exhibition was arranged by the Board of Education at the Victoria and Albert Museum. The exhibition dealt with books, manuscripts, autographs, illustrations, and portraits. One particular feature was the large number of original sketches by Cruikshank, and also the unfinished manuscript of Edwin Drood.

The centenary of the birth of Robert Browning (May 7) was likewise made the occasion of an exhibition at the Victoria and Albert Museum of Manuscripts and early editions of his books. The event was also marked by the Poetry Society's matinée at the Court Theatre, which was devoted to the work of the poet. On May 7, also, a special service was held at Westminster Abbey, at which Browning's Saul was given, the music being written for the occasion by Sir Hubert Parry.

Asolo, where Browning lived, marked its appreciation of the poet by dedicating to his name the street in which he resided, and placing in it a marble tablet inscribed to this effect.

The Curators of the Bodleian Library have appointed Mr. Falconer Madan, who had been sub-librarian for over thirty years, to the post of Bodley's Librarian, in succession to the late Mr. Nicholson, who died on March 17.

Mr. Thomas Hardy, O.M., who celebrated his seventy-second birthday on June 2, was, on that occasion, presented with a special gold medal by the Royal Society of Literature. The presentation was made privately at his home at Dorchester by a deputation from the Society.

A very extensively signed petition from dramatists, authors, and others, in reference to the Censorship of Plays, was presented, in June, to the King, through the Home Office. The petition drew attention to the fact that no steps have as yet been taken to carry out the recommendations of the Joint Committee of 1909, and that considerable dissatisfaction exists with the administration of the censorship.

Sir Sidney Colvin, who had filled the post of Keeper of the Prints and Drawings in the British Museum for over twenty-eight years, retired from public service on June 18, and Mr. Campbell Dodgson, M.A., was appointed in his place.

Amongst the Birthday Honours (announced in June) were the following names: Sir G. Thompson Hutchinson, chairman of the firm of Hurst and Blackett, Ltd., and a partner in Hutchinson and Co.; Sir George Paish, writer on economics; Sir Charles Hercules Read, Keeper of the British and Medieval Antiquities in the British Museum; Sir Edward Tyas Cook, the editor of Ruskin's works (Allen), and a distinguished Liberal journalist—the honour

A K.C.B. was conferred upon Sir Frederic Kenyon,

Principal Librarian of the British Museum, and a C.B. on Dr. Edmund Gosse, Librarian to the House of Lords.

Mrs. Lecky, who died on May 23, widow of the Right Hon. W. E. H. Lecky, the historian, left, in accordance with the wishes of her late husband, certain property "to the Provost, Fellows, and Scholars of Trinity College, Dublin, upon trust to apply the income in the endowment, of a Chair of Modern History, to be called 'The Lecky Chair of History.' "

Mr. B. M. Malabari, the well-known Indian reformer and writer, shortly before his death in July, proposed the foundation of a "Morley Chair for the Philosophy of History," as a mark of gratitude from Indians to Lord Morley for his reforms and other services as Secretary of State. At the time of Mr. Malabari's death a large sum had been received from Indian chiefs and others towards the fund, but the exact form of the memorial has not yet been announced.

The history and progress of printing and bookselling in England from 1477 to 1800 was illustrated by an exhibition of printed books, broadsheets, etc., at Stationers' Hall, opened by Lord Balcarres on June 25. The exhibition was held under the auspices of the International Association of Antiquarian Booksellers, and was one which we should much like to see repeated. As Lord Balcarres remarked, when opening the exhibition, while picture exhibitions were numerous enough, exhibitions of books were all too infrequent.

On August 2 was announced the appointment of Dr. G. E. Morrison, since 1897 correspondent of The Times in Peking, as political adviser to the President of the Chinese Republic—a high compliment to The Times in particular and the journalistic world in general.

We referred in our Preface last year to the stir caused in the literary world by the proposed auction sale of Bunyan's copy of Foxe's Book of Martyrs (1641) by the Bedford Literary Institute, for the benefit of its funds, which sale, however, was postponed by the intervention of the Attorney-General. Later, the Attorney-General decided that there was not sufficient evidence of a public trust to justify withholding its sale, and the book was eventually sold to Mr. Pierpont Morgan. The price paid is stated to have been £2,000 which is less than the sum the Library Committee of the Bedford Literary Institute expected to realize if the auction sale had been permitted at the date originally fixed. Under the circumstances, however, the amount received was considered satisfactory.

An interesting announcement was made on October 10, in the reported discovery by Mrs. Nuttall, a well-known American archaeologist, of several unpublished documents relating to Sir Francis Drake. Mrs. Nuttall informed the Hakluyt Society that these documents had been discovered by her in the archives and libraries of Mexico, Florence, Seville, and other places, and they ranged between the years 1578 and 1583. The Society accepted the offer of the documents, which will be published early in 1913.

Mr. G. K. Fortescue, Keeper of Printed Books at the British Museum since 1899, died on October 26, and his successor is Mr. A. W. Kaye Miller.

The impending retirement of Mr. Bryce, Ambassador at Washington, was officially announced on November 11. The reason is stated to be Mr. Bryce's desire to devote himself to the completion of certain literary work upon which he has been for some time engaged.

New Publications of the Year.—The past twelve months have seen the issue of an unusual number of new periodical publications. Amongst the more important of these may be mentioned the following:

The Arena (Iliffe and Sons, Ltd.), 1s. net, monthly, dealing with all phases of life at the Universities and public schools; The Russian Review (Nelson), 2s. 6d. net, a quarterly review of Russian history, politics, economics, and literature; The China Year-Book (Routledge), 10s. net, a new work of reference; Studies (Dublin), an Irish quarterly review of letters, philosophy, and science; The Blue Book (Crosby Lockwood), 1s. net, a literary review conducted by members of the University of Oxford, published every other month; Bedrock (Constable), 2s. 6d. net, monthly; Everyman (Dent), 1d., a weekly journal of literature and ethics; and Canadian News, 1d., a new paper dealing with the Dominion of Canada.

The Dial is the title of a forthcoming monthly magazine for Churchwomen and others, to be published monthly at 3d. Judging from the specimen number already issued, it has every mark of an excellent publication and should have a wide circulation.

We mentioned last year that Mr. James Loeb, of New York, was then arranging at his own expense for the publication of English translations of the classical authors of all periods. Arrangements are now completed, and the "Loeb Classical Library" is being published jointly by Mr. Heinemann and the Macmillan Company of New York, under the editorship of T. E. Page, M.A., and W. H. D. Rouse, Litt.D., with an Advisory Board of Scholars in England, America, and on the Continent. The complete library will consist of about 200 volumes, which will be issued at intervals. The volumes are priced at 5s. net in cloth, and 6s. 6d. net in leather.

A new and definitive edition of the works of Mr. Thomas Hardy, styled "The Wessex Edition," to be completed in twenty volumes, has been undertaken by Messrs. Macmillan.

The latest enterprise in cheap books is the series known as "The People's Books" (cloth, 6d. net), by Messrs. T. C. and E. C. Jack, described as a "library of new books by writers of distinction, bringing within the reach of all the results of modern knowledge."

The Girlhood of Queen Victoria (being extracts from the private diary of Her Majesty from her thirteenth year till her marriage in 1840), edited by Viscount Esher, was published in the autumn by Mr. Murray in two volumes. The King, in sanctioning the publication of these volumes, has conferred a great boon upon students of English history and the public at large who so eagerly read her Letters.

The second volume of The Life of Benjamin Disraeli (Murray), by W. F. Monypenny, dealing with the years 1837-1846, made its appearance in November. The work will be complete in four or five volumes.

The Times celebrated its forty thousandth number (September 10) by issuing a special supplement devoted to the history of The Times, the British Newspaper Press, and Printing—a journalistic feat which evoked a chorus of praise and congratulations from all quarters, and which proved that it is still the leading newspaper of the world. We are only echoing the expressed opinions of many others when we suggest that a reprint of this supplement in handy book form would be welcome to all interested in the Press.

The International Whitaker, which supplements the older Whitaker, is an international edition of Messrs. J. Whitaker and Sons' (Ltd.) well-known almanack. It is to be published at 2s. net, and will appear in December for the following January.

Journalistic and Trade Changes.—Mr. C. E. Jerningham ("Marmaduke" of Truth) has become part-proprietor and editor of Vanity Fair since October 1.

We understand that Mr. G. E. Buckle is retiring from the editorship of The Times, and that his successor is Mr. Geoffrey Robinson, late editor of the Johannesburg Star, who has been connected with The Times for some years.

The Edinburgh Review is now under the editorship of Mr. Harold Cox, and for the first time in its history admits signed articles.

The Oxford and Cambridge Review (1s. net) is now published from the offices of Messrs. Williams and Norgate, 14, Henrietta Street, W.C.

The Commentator and the Librarian and Book World (formerly the Librarian) are now both issued by Messrs. Stanley Paul and Co., 31, Essex Street, Strand, W.C.

The Daily News and Morning Leader have amalgamated, and on May 13 first appeared as one paper, under the title Daily News and Leader. Mr. A. G. Gardiner is the editor, and the price remains at a halfpenny.

The Amalgamated Press, Ltd., formerly of Bouverie Street, have recently moved to new premises, Fleetway House, Farringdon Street, E.C.

Messrs. Maunsel and Co., of Dublin, have opened a branch in London at Oakley House, Bloomsbury Street, W.C.

Amongst recent new publishing firms are the names of Herbert Jenkins, Ltd., 12, Arundel Place, Haymarket, S.W.; and Messrs. Murray and Evenden, Ltd., of Pleydell Street, Fleet Street, E.C. Mr. Herbert Jenkins was for more than ten years manager for Mr. John Lane.

The idea first suggested in the British Weekly by Sir W. R. Nicoll, advocating the formation of a firm who would make a speciality of proof-reading, has materialized in the Colophon Proof-Reading Agency, whose address is at 21, Warwick Lane, E.C.

A staff of readers, experts in nearly every branch of literature, is being formed under the management of an experienced Press-reader, and there is every prospect of Sir W. R. Nicoll's suggestion becoming a practical success. If worked on right lines, it should be a great relief to authors, printers, and publishers alike. As things are, the efficient proof-readers are very much overworked.

The deaths of the following occurred at too late a date to be noticed in the OBITUARY (Part III., p. 8 et seq.): Dr. James Gairdner, C.B., LL.D. (November 4); Mr. George Harwood, M.P., author of Towards Democracy, and other works (November 7); Mr. William Blackwood, publisher and editor (November 10); Mr. George Wynne, late editor of the Liverpool Daily Post (November 11); Rev. Joseph Agnew, author of various books on religious subjects (November 10); and Mr. William Bernhard Tegetmeier, the naturalist, in his 97th year (November 19).

The Nobel Prize for Literature, for 1912, has been awarded to Gerhart Hauptmann. This is the fourth German recipient of the prize, which was won by Mommsen (1902), by Eucken (1908), and by Paul Heyse (1910).

Publishers and Periodicals at Highest Prices.

FIVE STATEMENTS which we are prepared to prove:

- Publishers and Editors recommend this Agency to Authors, and ask us for contributions. We have placed a First Story with a well known Review and obtained £30 for it. We have obtained for the serial use of a 50,000 word story, by an unknown writer, £25 more than was first offered.
- At far better terms than first offered, we have placed with a well known firm of publishers a novel which the author's own agent, seeing no hope of success, refused to deal with.
- For the serial use of a 65,000 word novel by a well-known author, we have succeeded in obtaining an offer £20 in advance of the price previously paid by the same editor to the author direct.

OUR SUCCESS is due largely to the fact that we submit only carefully selected work—we decline to deal with over a thousand MSS. annually! Editors know this, and READ the MSS. we send them. A story which a client admits previously "trotting round for four years," has been placed by us, within ten days of receipt, with a magazine which had returned it when submitted by the author!

CRITICISING, REVISING, TYPEWRITING, PLACING MSS.

Chief Critic and Reviser: G. F. LEATHERDALE, M.A. (Oxon.).

An author's work is often spoiled by little inaccuracies, by a bad beginning or ending, or by grammatical slips. All MSS. submitted for our criticism will be carefully read, and should any change seem advisable, such alterations will be suggested as may increase the value of the author's work. Whenever possible offers for revision are made. Reading fees: Short Stories, 7d. per 1,000 words (minimum 2s.); Novels from 100,000 words, 4d. per 1,000 words; Verse, 2s. 6d. for the first 200 lines, and 2d. per 20 lines after. In order to save our clients time and trouble, MSS. we have read will, when suitable, be submitted to publishers and editors without further fee, other than out-of-pocket postages, etc., and 10 per cent. of price paid if a MS. is accepted. Verse is not accepted for placing.

TYPEWRITING and DUPLICATING of every description. We have done work for H.M. Government; Messrs. J. & E. Bumpus, Ltd., of Oxford Street, W.; J. M. Dent & Sons, Publishers; W. H. Smith & Sons; and many literary people, medical men, etc. Terms for typewriting, from 10d. per 1,000 words to 1½d. per folio of 72 words, according to quantity and legibility of copy. Perfect carbon copies, half price of top copy, with reduction for three carbons. Please send us particulars of your work, and a quotation will be sent by return. Specimens of work on application.

NOTE.—Although our terms are moderate, we are strongly opposed to the undercutting at present carried on by thoughtless and irresponsible persons. Good work is worth a fair price.

TRANSLATIONS.—French, German, Spanish, Italian, and other European languages. Special terms for translating books.

TYPEWRITER SUPPLIES.—We can supply the finest quality ribbons, carbons, paper, erasers, etc., also duplicating inks and stencils. Prices on application.

THE WIENER LITERARY AGENCY

Advantages :

Clients are entitled to the following advantages :
To have all MSS. read and, when approved, submitted to publishers and editors.

When an author's work cannot be recommended to publishers or editors, the Agency will be pleased to give advice as to its improvement, and any necessary revision can be arranged.

All MSS. are kept constantly "on the move," and reports as to their whereabouts will be sent to authors when desired.

A Selective Principle is applied to all MSS.
we accept for negotiation. Knowledge and discrimination guide our methods in regard to them.

Attention is directed to our arrangements for disposing of literary productions in the United States, as our Resident Manager in New York is exceptionally well acquainted with the field.

New authors and artists are invited to send us their work, and to get into personal touch with us. The initial difficulties of the literary calling are great enough without the additional drawbacks incident to inexperience. Frank criticism and candid advice for those who desire it.

Terms free on Application.

AUTHORS

NOTE.—The following Directory is confined, chiefly from considerations of space, to British and Colonial writers. A few American authors, however, will be found, and certain Continental writers who publish in this country. .

The particulars have been supplied, in nearly all cases, by the authors themselves, and the Editor desires to thank the large number of correspondents who have assisted in this manner. For the reason stated above, it has not always been possible to give an exhaustive list of each writer's work; but the titles included having been selected by the authors, the information in such cases will be found representative. Where no definite information has been obtainable, names have been necessarily omitted.

A (†) prefixed means that the name is a pseudonym. C=Contributor.

Where two or more consecutive books have been given, issued by the same firm, the publisher's name has not been repeated.

LAW AND LETTERS

THE Copyright Act, 1911 (1 and 2 Geo. V., c. 46), came into operation on July 1, 1912, and repealing, as it does, all the Statute law from 1734 to the present day, is of prime importance to the literary world. When supplemented by legislation in the self-governing colonies, it will form a complete code of copyright law for the whole of the British dominions. Up to now no judicial decisions have been given on the sections of the Act, but regulations dated June 7, 1912, applicable to Sections 3 and 19 (6) of the Act, have been issued by the Board of Trade (vide Statutory rules and Orders, 1912, Nos. 532 and 533). These regulations both affect the "Royalty System," but whilst the former, to which specific attention is drawn (vide p. 5), refer to all copyright works, the latter deal only with mechanical musical instruments.

So, after dealing with the law as altered by this new Statute, and with cases decided since the last publication of the Year-Book, we shall discuss the relations of authors and publishers, and shall conclude with a brief consideration of the usual clauses in agreements ordinarily entered into between author and publisher, explaining where necessary their use and application.

I. LAW OF COPYRIGHT

It is convenient to follow the new Act itself, and to deal separately with the law applicable to what is termed "Imperial Copyright"—i.e., the United Kingdom and British Possessions—and International Copyright.

I. COPYRIGHT IN BOOKS, ETC.

The new Act abrogates all common law rights (vide Section 31), and declares by Section 1 that copyright shall subsist throughout His Majesty's dominions in every original literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic work if—

1. In the case of a published work, the first publication was within His Majesty's dominions ;

2. In the case of an unpublished work, the author was at the date of the making of the work a British subject or resident within His Majesty's dominions.

"Copyright" is defined as the sole right to produce (or reproduce) the work, or any substantial part thereof, in any material form and in any language ; to perform, or, in the case of a lecture, deliver, the work or any substantial part thereof in public ; if the work is unpublished, to publish the work ; and shall include the sole right—

1. In the case of a dramatic work, to convert it into a novel or other non-dramatic work ;

2. In the case of a novel, or other non-dramatic work, or of an artistic work, to convert it into a dramatic work by performing it in public or otherwise ;

3. In the case of a literary, dramatic, or musical work, to make any record, perforated roll, cinematograph film, or other contrivance by means of which the work may be mechanically performed or delivered.

The Act concerns itself with, and affords the protection of, copyright to—

"Literary work," which includes maps, charts, plans, and tables.

"Dramatic work," which includes any piece for recitation, choreographic work, or entertainment in dumb show, the scenic arrangement or acting form of which is fixed in writing or otherwise, and any cinematograph production where the arrangement or acting form, or the combination of incidents represented, give the work an original character.

"Lectures," including addresses, speeches, and sermons.

"Artistic work," which includes works of painting, drawing, sculpture, and artistic craftsmanship, and architectural works of art, engravings, and photographs.

"Works of sculpture," including casts and models.

"Engravings," including etchings, lithographs, woodcuts, prints, and other similar works.

"Photographs," including photo, photo-lithographs, and any work produced by any process analogous to photography.

The term for which copyright shall subsist is by the new Act—subject to special provisions as to certain works—extended by Section 3 to the life of the author and a period of fifty years after his death. To this Section there is a proviso enacting that at any time after the expiration of twenty-five years or, in the case of a work in which copyright is existent at the passing of the Act, thirty years from the death of the author of a published work, copyright shall not be deemed to be infringed by the reproduction of the work for sale if the reproducer proves—

1. That he has given notice in writing of his intention to reproduce the work ;

2. That he has paid to the owner of the copyright royalties calculated at the rate of 10 per cent. on the price at which he publishes the work.

As to the terms of such notice and mode of payment of the royalties, the new Order of the Board of Trade (No. 532, June 7, 1912) is herewith set out in extenso :

The Board of Trade, in pursuance of the powers conferred by Section 3 of the Copyright Act, 1911, hereby make the following regulations :

Preliminary,

1. These Regulations may be cited as the Copyright Royalty System (General Regulations, 1912); and shall come into operation on July 1, 1912.

Notice

2. The notice required by Section 3 of the Copyright Act, 1911, shall contain the following particulars :

- (a) The name and address of the person intending to reproduce the work ;
- (b) The name of the work which it is intended to reproduce and (if necessary) a description sufficient to identify it ;
- (c) The manner in which it is intended to reproduce the work (e g., whether by printing, lithography, photography, etc.) ;
- (d) The price or prices at which it is intended to publish the work ;
- (e) The earliest date at which any of the copies will be delivered to a purchaser.

3. The notice shall, not less than one month before any copies of the work are delivered to a purchaser, be sent by registered post or published by advertisement as follows :

- (a) If the name and an address within the United Kingdom of the owner of the copyright, or his agent for the receipt of notice, are known or can with reasonable diligence be ascertained, the notice shall be sent to such owner or agent at such address ;
- (b) If such name and address are not known and cannot with reasonable diligence be ascertained, the notice shall be advertised in the London Gazette ; the advertisement in the London Gazette shall give the particulars required by paragraphs (a) and (b) of Regulation (2), and shall also state an address from which a copy of the notice described in Regulation (2) may be obtained.

Payment of Royalties

4.—(a) Unless otherwise agreed, royalties shall be payable by means of adhesive labels purchased from the owner of the copyright and affixed to the copies of the work.

After the person reproducing the work has given the prescribed notice of his intention to reproduce the work, the owner of the copyright shall, by writing sent by registered post, intimate to him some reasonably convenient place within the United Kingdom from which adhesive labels can be obtained, and on demand in writing and tender of the price shall supply from such place adhesive labels of the required denominations at a price equal to the amount of royalty represented thereby.

Subject to these regulations, no copy of the work shall be delivered to a purchaser until such label or labels denoting the amount of royalty have been affixed thereto.

(b) In cases when royalties are payable by means of adhesive labels, if at any time labels of the required denomination are not available either because—

- (i.) After the expiration of fourteen days from the date of the prescribed notice the owner of the copyright has not duly sent to the person reproducing the work an intimation of some reasonably convenient place within the United Kingdom from which such labels can be obtained ; or
- (ii.) The owner of the copyright refuses or neglects to supply such labels within fourteen days after demand duly made, copies of the work may be delivered to purchasers without having labels affixed thereto ; and the amount of royalties shall be a debt due from the person reproducing the work to the owner of the copyright, and the person reproducing the work shall keep an account of all such copies sold by him.

(c) For the purposes of this regulation " the date of the prescribed notice " means—

- (i.) In cases when the notice is required to be sent by registered post, the date when the notice would in ordinary course of post be delivered ;
- (ii.) In cases when the notice is required to be advertised in the London Gazette, the date of such advertisement.

(d) Where royalties are by agreement payable in any other mode than by means of adhesive labels the time and frequency of the payment shall be such as are specified in the agreement.

(e) The adhesive label supplied as aforesaid shall be an adhesive paper label, square in shape, the design to be entirely enclosed within a circle and the side of the label not to be greater than $\frac{3}{4}$ inch in length. The label shall not bear the effigy of the Sovereign or any other person, nor any word mark or design such as to suggest that the label is issued by or under the authority of the Government for the purpose of denoting any duty payable to the Government.

Interpretation

5. In these Regulations the expression "owner of the copyright" has the same meaning as in Section 3 of the Copyright Act, 1911.

Dated this 7th day of June, 1912.

With regard to the vexed question of what does or does not amount to a "publication" in relation to any work, the Act declares that publication means the issue of copies of the work to the public, and does not include the performance in public of a dramatic or musical work, the delivery in public of a lecture, the exhibition in public of an artistic work, or the construction of an architectural work of art; but for the purposes of this provision the issue of photographs and engravings of works of sculpture and architectural works of art shall not be deemed to be publication of such works.

By the new Act the author of a work shall be the first owner of the copyright therein, but in the case of a portrait, photograph, or engraving the person who orders the same, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, shall be the first owner of the copyright (this is making previous case law into a section of the statute, vide Boncas v. Cooke [1903, 2 K B., 227], the Boy Preacher's case), and any person who, under a contract of service or apprenticeship, is the author of a work will find, in the absence of his making an agreement to the contrary, that the law vests the copyright of such work in his employer. But where the work is an article or other contribution to a newspaper, magazine, or periodical, there shall, in the absence of any agreement to the contrary, be deemed to be reserved to the author a right to restrain the publication of the work otherwise than as part of a newspaper, magazine, or periodical.

Delivery of Books to Libraries

One complete copy of every book published (unless a new edition is a mere reissue without change) must be delivered gratuitously within one month of publication by the publisher (1) to the British Museum without demand; and on written demand if made within twelve months after publication to (2) the Bodleian Library, Oxford; (3) the University Library, Cambridge; (4) the Library of the Faculty of Advocates at Edinburgh; (5) the Library of Trinity College, Dublin; and, subject to certain regulations, (6) the National Library of Wales. Default exposes the publisher to a £5 penalty and the value of the book.

Registration of Books

Under the Copyright Act of 1842 the law provided for the keeping at Stationers' Hall of a register where the proprietorship in the copyright of books and the assignments of licences affecting such copyright might be registered, and in the new Act in its original form similar provisions were to be found. The clauses, however, were struck out in Committee; and as the Act now stands the Copyright Act of 1842 is repealed, and no new sections dealing with this form of protection to copyright appear.

Assignment of Right

An owner may assign his interest wholly or partially, or subject to limitations to any particular country to which the Act extends; but no such assignment will be valid unless it is in writing signed by the owner or his agent. But where the assignor is the first owner of the copyright (being the author), no assignment shall be operative for more than twenty-five years from the death of the author.

and such author cannot by such an assignment deprive his legal and personal representatives of their rights in the reversionary interest of such copyright.

Infringements of Copyright

These are committed—

1. By publication in the United Kingdom of an unauthorized edition, or importation for sale of foreign reprints, of a copyright work—i.e., literary piracy.
2. By the illegitimate appropriation of another's literary labour—i.e., literary larceny.

Civil Remedies for Infringement

The new statute by Section 6 preserves all the remedies by way of damages injunction (in Scotland an interdict), and accounts for infringement of copyright; but if a defendant alleges in his defence and proves at the trial that he was not aware, and had not reasonable means of making himself aware, that copyright subsisted in the work, the plaintiff can only get an injunction against him and not damages.

The property in infringing copies is by Section 7 given to the owner of the copyright, who may bring an action claiming that the possession of such copies should be handed over to him.

Limitations of Action

Any such actions as above must be brought within three years of the infringement.

Other Remedies

The new Act provides for the United Kingdom summary remedies in the police court against any person who knowingly—

1. Makes for sale or hire any infringing copy of a work in which copyright subsists; or
2. Sells or lets for hire or by way of trade exposes or offers for sale or hire any infringing copy; or

3. Distributes infringing copies for the purposes of trade or to such an extent as to affect prejudicially the owner of the copyright ;

4. Imports for sale or hire into the United Kingdom any infringing copy.

For any of these four offences the Court may impose a penalty not exceeding 40s. for every copy dealt with, but not exceeding £50 in respect of the same transaction. Further, if any person knowingly makes, or has in his possession, any plate for the purpose of making infringing copies, the Court may order such plates or copies of the work in the possession of the alleged offender (whether he be convicted or not) to be forfeited or destroyed.

Infringement and Fair Use

Copyright in a work shall be deemed to be infringed by anyone who, without the consent of the owner of the copyright, does anything the sole right to do which is vested in the owner of the copyright, but the following exceptions are made and do not (so says the new law) amount to infringements :

1. Any fair dealing with any work for the purposes of private study, research, criticism, review, or newspaper summary.

2. The publication in a newspaper of a lecture delivered in public, unless the report is prohibited by a notice conspicuously placed in the building where the lecture is held.

3. The publication in a collection mainly composed of non-copyright matter intended for the use of schools of short passages from works in which copyright subsists, provided that not more than two of such passages from works by the same author are published by the same publisher within five years, and that the source from which such passages are taken is acknowledged.

4. The reading or recitation in public by one person of any reasonable extract from any published work.

It is not an infringement of copyright to publish a report in a newspaper of an address of a political nature delivered at a public meeting. So with these extensions the law stands much as it did.

Fair use, however, may be made of even copyright works of other authors in the composition or compilation of new books, but the new work must be substantially the result of independent labour and research. Thus the text for a new edition of old MSS. in the British Museum must not be copied from an existing copyright edition, but from the MSS. (Parry v. Moring, an unreported decision of Mr. Justice Farwell in 1903, the case of the Letters of Dorothy Osborne). An abridgement may or may not be an infringement of copyright, according to the use made of the original work. In compiling "anthologies," no use whatever must be made of copyright works without first obtaining permission of the owner of the copyright.

II. SPECIAL PROVISIONS AS TO CERTAIN WORKS

In the case of joint authorship, copyright shall subsist during the life of the author who first dies, and for fifty years after, or during the life of the author who dies last, whichever period is the longer.

If a married woman and her husband collaborate, her interest in the joint publication shall be her separate property.

In the case of posthumous works copyright shall subsist till publication or performance or delivery in public, and for a term of fifty years afterwards.

In the case of Government publications the copyright of which has been vested in the Crown, copyright shall subsist for fifty years from the date of first publication. (But vide Treasury Minute, June 28, 1912, Parl Paper [292], as to how far this is being insisted upon)

· III. COPYRIGHT IN DRAMATIC PIECES

This copyright comprises two separate rights, the first dealing with copyright in the author's work as written matter, and the second with the copyright in such work as represented on the stage or otherwise to the public.

Right of Publication and Public Performance

The law when the new Act passed was the same as that of copyright in books in respect of these matters, as also the time of limitation for actions or proceedings for infringement, etc.

Every unauthorized representation of a dramatic piece, or other infringement of the copyright therein, exposes the offender to an action for damages and an injunction, and, by Section 2 of the Copyright Act, the copyright shall also be deemed to be infringed by any person who for his private profit permits a theatre, or other place of entertainment, to be used for the performance in public of a copyright play without the consent of the owner of the copyright, unless he proves that he was not aware and had no reasonable grounds for suspecting that the performance would be an infringement of copyright.

Assignment

Writing of the author or his agent is necessary. An assignment of copyright in the printed book does not transfer the right of performance, unless such assignment is registered with a statement of the intention to do so, or unless the right is clearly conveyed by an unregistered assignment, and a sole licence to produce does not amount in law to an assignment of the acting rights (Neilson v. Horniman, 1909, 25 T.L.R., 684).

Compulsory Licence

In dramatic, as in literary or musical work, it is now provided that at any time after the death of the author of a work which has been published or performed in public, if complaint is made to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council that the owner of the copyright has refused to republish himself or allow the republication of such work, and that by such refusal the work is withheld from the public, the owner of the copyright may be ordered to grant a licence to reproduce or perform the work in public on such terms as the Judicial Committee may think fit.

IV. COPYRIGHT IN MUSICAL COMPOSITIONS

This copyright is analogous to the copyright in dramatic pieces, and in like manner comprises—

1. Right of publication in print.
2. Right of public performance:

1. Right of Publication in Print

The law is the same as that of copyright in books (ante, q.v.), except in the following particulars: Before the Act it was decided that perforated music sheets for use in a mechanical piano or organ are not copies of music, and copyright gives no protection against the reproduction of music in this manner (Boosey v. Whight, [1900] 1 Ch., 122, music for an Æolian organ).

So also this year it was held by the Court of Appeal that the composer of the music of a song, after the song has been published, has no common law remedy against an unauthorized person who copies the music of the song on to sheets of vulcanized rubber and publishes and sells such sheets as gramophone records (Monckton v. Gramophone Company [106 L.T., 84]).

Now, however, the new statute enacts that copyright shall subsist in records, perforated rolls, and other contrivances by means of which sounds are produced, just as if such contrivances were musical works, the term of such copyright being fifty years from the making of the original plate; and the person who was the owner of the original plate shall be deemed to be the owner of the copyright.

Copyright shall subsist in respect of all rolls made before the commencement of the new Act, and after the passing of the Act it shall not be an infringement of copyright to make perforated rolls or other contrivances for the production of sound if you can prove—

1. That such contrivances were previously made with the consent of the owner of the copyright;
2. That you have given notice of your intention to make such contrivances and paid the royalties which are fixed by the statute.

In either case you may neither alter nor omit portions from the work, unless records were previously made with the consent of the owner of the copyright containing such alterations or omissions, or unless the alterations are necessary for the adaptation of the work.

In addition to the same remedies for infringement of copyright as in the case of books, in the case of music under the statute 2 Edward VII., c. 15, a constable was empowered, by order of a magistrate or on the written request of the owner of the copyright, to seize pirated copies, and the magistrate may order their destruction or delivery up, but not a perforated music roll for a piano-player (Mabe v. Connor, 1909, 1 K.B., 515). Technical difficulties as to applying this statute arose—mainly owing to the decision of the Divisional Court that a summons must be first served on the hawk or other offender (ex parte Francis [1903, 1 K.B., 275]). An Act with more stringent provisions received the Royal Assent in August, 1906, by which "every person who prints, reproduces, or sells, or exposes, offers, or has in his possession for sale any pirated copies of music, or has in his possession plates for reproducing pirated copies of music, shall (unless he proves that he acted innocently) be guilty of an offence" punishable summarily, and he will be liable to be fined £5, and on a second or subsequent conviction to be imprisoned or fined £10. It is also enacted that any constable may take into custody without warrant any person who sells, exposes, offers, or has in his possession for sale any pirated copies of any such music as may be specified in a writing addressed to the Chief of Police, and signed by the apparent owner of the copyright or his agent, requesting the arrest, at the risk of such owner, of all offenders against the Act. And a search warrant may be granted in the case of suspected premises. These remedies are not abolished by the new Copyright Act.

V. COPYRIGHT IN ENGRAVINGS AND THE LIKE

The new Act, repealing as it does the greater part of the Fine Arts Copyright Act, 1862, places the copyright in the fine arts in a position similar to that of literary publications, with the following exceptions: that the making or publishing of paintings, drawings, engravings, or photographs of a work of sculpture or artistic craftsmanship shall not constitute an infringement of copyright if the said artistic productions from which copies are being made are permanently situated in a public place or building.

The result of this clause appears to be that any picture presented to or acquired by a public art gallery will from the time of being hung be deprived of the protection of the Copyright Act.

By Section 9 it is enacted that where the construction of a building or other structure occurs which infringes, or would when completed infringe, the copyright in some other work, the owner of the copyright shall not be entitled to obtain an injunction or interdict to restrain such construction.

The same provision as to the duration of copyright in respect of posthumous literary, dramatic, or musical work is made in the case of posthumous engravings.

The term for which copyright shall subsist in photographs is specifically provided for in Section 21, and is stated to be fifty years from the making of the original negative; and the person who was the owner of such negative at the time when it was made shall be deemed to be the author of the work; and when such owner is a body corporate (e.g., a company), the body corporate shall be deemed to reside within the territorial extent of the Act, if it has established a place of business within such parts.

Penalties for Fraudulent Productions and Sales

Section 7 of the Act of 1862 is not repealed, and actions may be brought for penalties—up to £10 for every offence with forfeiture of piratical copies and negatives—in respect of repeating or copying for sale, hire, or exhibition and distribution, or knowingly importing, selling, publishing unlawful copies, or causing any such thing to be done.

Actions for damages, with forfeiture of piratical copies, in respect of the same matters.

Actions for injunction to restrain future infringements.

Penalties and forfeitures may be enforced by action or summarily.

Under this Section 7, Clause (4), Mr. Justice Channell decided in the case of Carlton Illustrators and Jones v. Coleman and Co. (1911, 1 K.B., 771) that the defendants were not entitled to enlarge and colour without the plaintiff Jones's consent a fine line drawing which the plaintiff had prepared for the defendants for advertisement purposes and for which he had been paid, the copyright thereby vesting in the defendants. Mr. Justice Channell held that, as the alteration in the drawing might be damaging to the plaintiff's reputation as an artist, the defendants had committed a breach of Section 7. The defendants simply acquired the copyright in the drawing; and as there was no contract to publish a reproduction of the drawing in any particular form other than that which they would have as the owners of the copyright, the section had been infringed.

VI. THE APPLICATION OF THE NEW ACT TO BRITISH POSSESSIONS

The Act, except where specific provision is made to the contrary, is operative throughout the whole of His Majesty's dominions, with the exception of the self-governing Colonies, and they, if they so desire, may adopt the Act en bloc, or with such modifications or additions relating exclusively to procedure and remedies as may adapt the Act to their local circumstances. Any British possession may also pass supplemental legislation to the Act, but it shall only be applicable to the works of authors who were resident in the possession at the time of making the work and to works first published in the possession. The self-governing Colonies are stated in the Act to be the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, and Newfoundland. His Majesty may by Order in Council extend the Act to Protectorates, including that of Cyprus.

By Section 26 the Legislature of any self-governing dominion may at any time repeal the Act, and on so doing ceases to be a dominion to which the Act extends, but it is provided that, where the copyright laws of any self-governing dominion to which the Act does not extend provides adequate protection within the dominion for the works (whether published or not) of authors who are British subjects resident elsewhere than in that dominion, an Order in Council may issue in this country for the purposes of giving reciprocal protection.

COLONIAL COPYRIGHT

The Colonial Copyright Act, 1847 (sometimes called the Foreign Reprints Act), and the International Copyright Act, 1886, are repealed by the new Copyright Act, and it remains to be seen how far the self-governing dominions will adopt our new copyright code. We give below a short résumé of the law as it obtains in Canada and Australia.

CANADIAN LAW

The Canada Copyright Act, 1875, gives Imperial sanction to the provisions of an Act of the Canadian Parliament putting the law of copyright in Canada on an independent basis, but prohibits the importation of Canadian reprints of English copyright books.

The Canadian Act enables the author of a literary or artistic work domiciled in Canada, or in any part of the British possessions, or being a citizen of any country, having an international copyright treaty with the United Kingdom, to obtain copyright in Canada for twenty-eight years, by publication or republication in Canada under certain specified conditions.

This copyright is in addition to, and concurrent with, copyright under the British statute of 1842, the rights under which are not interfered with by the Imperial and Canadian Acts of 1875. The latter Act is now replaced and substantially re-enacted by the revised statutes of Canada, 1886, cap. 62, cited in Canada as 'the Copyright Act.' Next came an abortive Act of the Canadian Parliament in 1889, requiring publication or republication in Canada as a condition of copyright. This Act is a dead-letter, because it has never been proclaimed by the Governor-General, and was not to come into force until so proclaimed. Finally, a more moderate step in the same direction was taken in 1900 by the Canadian Copyright Act, 1900, which provides that, when the owner of the copyright in a work first published in some part of the Empire other than Canada has lawfully granted a license to reproduce it in Canada, then, notwithstanding anything in 'the Copyright Act,' the Minister of Agriculture may prohibit the importation into Canada of any copies printed elsewhere, and the Act directs the seizure and forfeiture of all books imported in contravention of the Act, and imposes a penalty for unlawful importation. The intention, of course, is to stop the importation into Canada of copies of the English edition of a book, and so to give the grantee in Canada of the author's Canadian rights a monopoly of the Canadian market. It has been suggested that the Act of 1900 is in conflict with the British law of copyright, in that it derogates from the right to sell copies throughout the Empire, and its validity has been questioned by text-writers. See Dr. Briggs's Law of International Copyright, p. 615.

This work, which was published in 1906, may be welcomed as a valuable addition to the contributions of English text-writers to the exposition of the law of international copyright.

On April 26, 1911, Mr. Fisher brought forward in the Canadian House a new Copyright Bill, which has been much criticized, rightly or wrongly, as legislating against the Canadian author for the advantage of Canadian printers. By this new Bill the term of copyright is to be the life of the author and fifty years after his death, but "every copy of a work published in Canada shall be printed or made in Canada, and shall bear the notice of copyright."

The Bill also contains clauses making registration imperative in order to establish a title to copyright. This provision, as has already been pointed out, has no place in our new copyright law, and in fact has been abandoned by most modern legislatures. Mr. Fisher by his speech introductory of the Bill appears to have conveyed the impression that Canada was prepared to strike out on a line of her own as far as international copyright was concerned; the obstacle to Canada joining the International Union being the difficulty that any author who makes first publication in the Union, no matter to what country he may belong, shall have copyright throughout the Union.

With regard to British subjects resident elsewhere than in Canada, Mr. Fisher's Bill—in spite of the fact that the printing of a work in Canada is stated to be a condition precedent to copyright—by Clause 34 seems to grant copyright to any author if he is a bona fide British subject who publishes first in Great Britain or any of the Colonies.

AUSTRALIAN LAW

The Commonwealth of Australia passed a Copyright Act for Australia in 1905. It deals with literary, musical, and dramatic copyright in one part of the Act, and with artistic copyright separately. Subject to the conditions specified in the Act, protection is given, whether the author is a British subject or not, to books published, and musical and dramatic works publicly performed, in Australia, before or simultaneously with first publication or performance elsewhere, for the life of the author and seven years after his death, or for forty-two years from the date of publication or performance in Australia, whichever is the longer, but in the case of a book first published, or of a musical or dramatic work first performed after the author's death, for the term of forty-two years. Similar protection is also accorded to lectures first publicly delivered in Australia after the commencement of the Act. The copyright in an artistic work attaches to works made in Australia after the commencement of the Act, whether the author is a British subject or not, and subsists for forty-two years from the making of the work, or for the author's life and seven years, whichever shall last the longer. It is expressly provided that the owner of any copyright or performing right in any literary, musical, or dramatic work or artistic work entitled to protection in Australia by virtue of any Act of the Imperial Parliament, shall, on obtaining the prescribed certificate of the registration of his copyright or performing right, have the same protection in the Commonwealth as the owner of any copyright or performing right under the Act.

GENERALLY

A number of other colonies have local copyright laws of their own, and whenever that is the case, 'the conditions of protection which affect works first published in any of these must be sought in two bodies of law—in the Acts of the British Parliament, as regards their protection throughout all parts of the British dominions except the colony of first publication, and in the Acts or Ordinances of the Colonial legislative authority, as regards their protection within the territory of that colony itself' (Dr. Briggs's Law of International Copyright, p. 594).

But copyright acquired in respect of literary works published in the United Kingdom, extending to every part of the British dominions, is, of course, entitled to protection in any of these Colonies.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT

The International Copyright Acts of 1844, 1852, 1875, and 1886, are all repealed by the new Bill, which in Section 29 enacts that it may be directed by Order in Council that the Copyright Act, 1911, or such parts of it as may be specified, shall apply—

1. To works first published in a foreign country in like manner as if they were first published within His Majesty's dominions;
2. To literary, dramatic, musical, and artistic works the authors of which were at the time of the making subjects or citizens of a foreign country as if they were British subjects;
3. In respect of residence in any foreign country to which the Order relates as if such residence were residence in His Majesty's dominions.

But before making any Order in Council under this section in respect of any foreign country (other than a country with which His Majesty has entered into a convention relating to copyright), the authorities must be satisfied that that foreign country has made or has undertaken to make the expedient provisions for the protection of works entitled to copyright under our new Act.

By Section 30 these clauses of Section 29 are made operative in British possessions, and the Governor-in-Council of any self-governing dominion may make like orders in respect of that dominion.

THE COPYRIGHT UNION

The Berne Convention, revised in 1908, aims at securing reciprocity of copyright on uniform lines. It applies to most of the great countries of Europe and to Japan, but not to Austria and Hungary or to Russia or Turkey, and the contracting States are called the Copyright Union. It is provided that other countries may accede to the Convention. Germany, Belgium, Denmark, Spain, France, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Liberia, Luxembourg, Monaco, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland, and Tunis were signatories to the revised convention.

Term of Copyright

The term of protection granted by the present convention includes the life of the author and fifty years after his death, but the contracting countries shall only be bound to apply this provision in so far as it does not conflict with their own laws. Photographic and the public performances of dramatic and musical works are included in this revised convention, and the authors of literary, scientific, or artistic works shall have the exclusive right of authorizing the reproduction of their works by cinematograph. Cinematograph productions shall also be protected as literary or artistic works if the work has, by its arrangement of acting or combination of incidents represented, a personal or original character.

Remedy for Infringement Abroad

An English author desiring to stop infringement of his copyright in a foreign country must pursue his remedy in the foreign court.

Registration

Neither registration of the work nor the deposit of any copy will be required of a work produced in a foreign country in the Copyright Union.

TRANSLATIONS

The authors of unpublished works being subjects or citizens of one of the countries of the Union, and the authors of works first published in one of those countries, shall enjoy in the other countries of the Union, during the whole term of the right in the original work, the exclusive right of making or authorizing a translation of their works.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT IN THE COLONIES

Works produced in India or the colonies enjoy copyright in the countries in the Copyright Union.

COUNTRIES OUTSIDE THE COPYRIGHT UNION

There is a separate convention between Austria and Hungary and the United Kingdom on the same lines as the Berne Convention.

COPYRIGHT IN THE UNITED STATES

English authors can now obtain copyright for their literary and artistic productions in the United States under the Chace Act of 1891 and the President's proclamation; but as regards books and photographs, chromos and lithographs, two copies, which are required to be sent to the Librarian of Congress, have to be 'printed from type set within the limits of the United States, or from plates made therefrom, or from negatives or drawings on stone made within the limits of the United States, or from transfers made therefrom.' A further Act of Congress of March 4, 1909, has been passed to amend and consolidate the Acts respecting copyright, and the benefits of that Act are expressly limited by Section 8 to : (a) When an alien author or proprietor shall be domiciled within the United States at the time of the first publication of his work; or (b) when the foreign state or nation, of which such author or proprietor is a citizen or subject, grants, either by treaty, convention, agreement, or law to citizens of the United States the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as to its own citizens, or copyright protection substantially equal to the protection secured to such foreign author under this Act, or by treaty, or when such foreign State or nation is a party to an international agreement which provides for reciprocity in the granting of copyright, by the terms of which agreement the United States may at its pleasure become a party. The existence of such reciprocal conditions shall be determined by proclamation of the President. On April 9, 1910, President Taft, by proclamation of that date, declared the benefits of the Act of 1909 available to Great Britain and her possessions in consequence of this country having allowed to Americans the benefits of copyright here on substantially the same basis as Englishmen. Similar privileges by this proclamation were granted to other countries, the only limitation on which inquiry is still pending being in respect of musical performing right and the mechanical reproduction of musical work.

An American author, in order to obtain copyright in England, must publish in England and the United States simultaneously.

The Copyright Law of 1909 alters the former statutory provisions permitting the filing in advance of the title of a dramatic work before the deposit of finished copies of the work.

Now, to secure copyright registration for a dramatic or musical dramatic work two copies of the work, if the work is reproduced in copies for sale, should be sent to the Register of Copyrights, Copyright Office, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C., and a money-order for a dollar to cover the statutory registration fee. The copies sent must be of the best edition.

An important decision was reached by the Board of United States General Appraisers in March, 1908, with reference to the duty on imported sheets, reversing a previous ruling. The new ruling is as follows: Books of foreign authors published in the United States are subject to no duty upon royalty. Books printed and bound abroad are subject to duty upon the entire royalty paid thereon. Sheets printed abroad and bound and finished into books in the United States are subject only to duty upon the percentage of royalty applicable to the parts involved.

II. AUTHOR, PUBLISHER, AND AGENT

Note.—Please see footnote to page 43.

IN the foregoing paragraphs a brief exposition has been given of the law which governs the barter of literary property. Author and publisher should know the essential facts of copyright law, if for no other reason than because a lawyer is seldom or never called in to draft an agreement between these parties. The assistance of the law is invoked in almost every similar relation. In buying or leasing a house a man would be extremely ill-advised if he failed to consult his solicitor, but in buying or leasing a book the author is content to rely on the printed form of agreement (varying between different publishers but very slightly in wording), which he exchanges with the publisher, and which is subject to stamp duty.

GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS

We propose now to consider what kinds of agreement these are, but before we discuss their clauses in detail a few general observations may be made. Between the writing of a book and its publication a large number of processes intervene, many of which have been obscured rather than illuminated by recent controversial discussions. Let us try to unravel them a little :

1. A publisher must be found, either directly or by means of an agent.

2. Terms of publication must be discussed and agreed between the interested parties.

At this point the publisher's task may be said properly to begin, and, in view of recent statements and conjectures on the matter, it may fairly be urged that authors are apt to under-estimate the share due to a publisher in the successful production of their books. It is not merely that he employs the printers and the binders, thus taking the responsibility of format and of taste ; his generic function consists in the distribution of the book, when published, by means of travellers and advertisement and other agencies of sale. Above all, in the vast majority of instances, he pays the initial cost. An author may write another book, and either recover his lost or establish his unmade reputation, but when a publisher has lost his money on a book, he has been—stupid and over-confident, perhaps, but at least—unfortunate in the business on which he depends for his livelihood. And ill speculation of this kind is bound to fall to the lot even of a Daniel among book judges. Hence, in his trade, as in others, the profits on successful trading must go towards the recoupment of losses and bad debts, else there would be no margin for enterprise.

The author should remember, too, that all the business side of the transaction falls on the publisher ; he is the intermediary between his own bookshelves and the public. The complicated questions of trade discounts, travellers' commissions, booksellers' terms, and so forth, have all to be dealt with by the publisher, who must at the same time be a man of some literary attainments, inasmuch as his operations extend from the manuscript of the author—or, rather, as it should always be, from the 'copy' fresh from the typewriter—to the last ramifications of selling the published book. Apart from works of pure scholarship, for which ex hypothesi not large sales are anticipated, the most 'successful' books, in the sense of remunerative commercial ventures, often owe as big a debt to the publisher's expert knowledge and suggestions and to his business abilities as to the author himself.

Till a few years ago there was no recognized intermediary between the author and the publisher, and in those more spacious days of less specialized functions the publisher was often his own printer and his own bookbinder as well. The tendency of the present day, however, is to narrow the publisher's sphere more and more to the business side. A class of agents has sprung up who take the literary side of publishers' work more and more out of the hands of the publishers. Under these conditions the modern author rarely brings his book direct to the publisher's office.

He tends to commit it to an agent, whose business it becomes to find a suitable publisher, and to arrange on the author's behalf fair terms of publication. In this tendency of things two obvious facts must be noted: first, the publishers lose touch with the authors whose works they bring out, and, secondly, a great responsibility rests on the literary agent. The author, accordingly, has to deal with two intervening 'middlemen' between his MS. and his readers, and the protection of the Authors' Society is almost as frequently sought against agents as against publishers. The attempt in these paragraphs to put the case for the publishers as prominently before the writing public as is compatible with fairness has been the subject of sundry animadversions—to employ a term which contains the appropriate animus—on the part of some members of the agents' profession. The late Mr. Gale Pedrick, for example, has been quoted as stating "that the very fact that the publishers are squealing against the literary agent proves that the agent has uses which, from the author's point of view, must be of the most valuable kind." The "uses" have not been called in question: it is the question of abuses which has been raised; and when Mr. Pedrick proceeds to say that, "apart from his usefulness, or want of usefulness, whether to author or publisher, the agent has so established himself . . . that it is absolutely impossible to turn him out," he goes, we venture to think, too far. Worse barnacles than agents have been dislodged from time to time, and if Mr. Pedrick's hypothesis were raised to the dignity of a proposition to the effect that agents are useless to authors and publishers alike, these remarks would be unnecessary. It is because their services are useful, but require in some respects to be regulated and organized, now that they have developed to so considerable an extent, that it is worth while to submit the general lines of our present argument.

THE AGENCY CLAUSE

The author should be warned against a clause, sometimes introduced into agents' agreements, which requires him to pay the agent a commission, not merely on the book under discussion, but on future books which the author may write during a stated term of years. Cases have not been unknown in which, when one book has been launched with more of promise than of profit in its record, the publisher has suggested to the author the exact lines and scope on which a second book should be written in order to insure a genuine success. And when all the preliminaries have been settled, and the author and publisher together have arranged for the production of a book for their joint and mutual advantage, the agent has then intervened under a clause in his first agreement, and has claimed a commission on the proceeds of the book in which from start to finish he had no part nor parcel. This strikes us as an excessive price to pay for the agent's first service, and as distinctly unfair to author and publisher alike. Indeed, we would go further than this, and urge that an agent's work stands for all practical purposes on the same level as a solicitor's. He is called in by the author to carry through certain negotiations, and at the close of these negotiations he should be required to send in his bill. There should be a scale of fees for his work, beginning with a low fee for the work, which he most commonly has to perform, of tying up the parcels of manuscript with fresh paper and string as they return to him from successive publishers. He should in no case, or in only the most exceptional cases, be entitled to deduct a percentage from the author's profits in the form of a commission on the agent's preliminary work in finding a publisher for the book and in arranging the terms of publication. The 'agency clause' in particular, which entitles the agent to 'collect and receive all moneys due under the terms of this agreement,' and which acknowledges the agent's receipt as a good and valid discharge, should be signed only with the utmost caution. It ties the author to the agent through the whole career of the book; it effectually prevents that rapprochement between the author and the publisher, and keeps the publisher at arm's length, to the detriment of a relationship which might be useful to both. Many reputable publishers argue that the 'agency clause' acts as a deterrent to that whole-hearted co-operation with the author and that mutual confidence and harmony which are at the bottom of commercial success; and though some go too far in the opposite direction, and commit all the paraphernalia of a publishing agreement to a simple exchange of letters—an extremely unsatisfactory ‘old’ fashion—we believe in a moderate conservatism in these matters, with the Authors’ Society in the background, and without, as we trust, too keen a competition for success.

FOUR KINDS OF AGREEMENT

Whether effected directly or by means of an agent, the agreement between author and publisher may take one of four forms. It may be (1) a royalty agreement, in which the publisher takes all the costs and risk of production, and pays the author a certain percentage on every copy of the book sold; (2) a profit-sharing agreement, in which the author and publisher divide the net profits of the book; (3) a sale outright of the copyright by the author to the publisher; or (4) a commission agreement, which is more or less exactly the reverse of a royalty agreement—the author, that is to say, pays all the costs of production, and pays the publisher a commission in the form of a percentage on the sales effected.

COMMISSIONING THE PUBLISHER

This last form of agreement is perhaps the simplest, though for more than one reason it is the most unpopular with publishers. We shall not be stating these reasons unfairly if we say that some of them are disinterested and others, perhaps, a little interested. The commission book, if it is successful, certainly does not pay the publisher as well as a royalty book. But apart from this, the publisher naturally feels considerably less interest in undertaking it, inasmuch as the whole initiative is taken out of his hands, and he has to receive the author’s sanction for every pennyworth of expenditure upon the book, and further, to justify such expenditure to the author, who may be difficult to convince or even hard of understanding, with the consequence that commission books, especially when only a small sale is expected, are often regarded by publishers as involving more trouble than they are worth, and are, indeed, usually declined, except in rare cases, by the best firms.

In entering on a memorandum of agreement for the publication of a book on commission, to take this fourth and simplest form first, such memorandum should be sent by the publisher accompanied, in every instance, by an estimate for producing the requisite number of copies of the book under discussion, to form one volume or more of approximately so many sheets of sixteen pages in such and such a size of paper. This estimate should state the rate and amount of the following items :

1. Composition per sheet.
2. Paper per ream.
3. Machining per ream.
4. Moulding or stereotyping, per sheet, if required.
5. Binding, per copy or per 100 copies.

Allowances should also be made for :

6. Illustrations, if required.
7. The brass blocks or letterings required by the binder.
8. The reader's time spent on proofs and revises.
9. Corrections, per hour.
10. Insurance, per £100.
11. Advertisements, which should be charged to the author at scale prices as ordered by him for insertion in papers of his selection.

Based on this estimate, the memorandum will witness that 'in consideration of the payment by the author to the publisher of the amount of the estimate hereinafter appearing, the receipt of which sum is hereby acknowledged, the publishers hereby agree to print, publish, advertise, and sell a first edition of a number to be agreed upon of the work written by the author, and entitled . . . and to pay to the author the sale profits thereof as hereinafter provided and calculated, and according to the terms hereinafter contained.'

The first clause of the agreement will then provide that the publishers shall produce the work in one volume or more, and shall warehouse the bound and quire stock, and shall deliver the usual press copies, and shall account to the author for every copy produced, annually or semi-annually, as may be agreed.

The second clause will deal with the method of calculating the sale proceeds. Copies sold in the United Kingdom at the regular trade prices are most commonly accounted for to the author at two-thirds of the full published price, thirteen copies being reckoned as twelve, less a discount of 10 per cent. This calculation is best reached by taking the average prices charged by the publishers to wholesale booksellers and exporters. We may remark here, in reference to this form of agreement, as well as to the three others, that the words 'thirteen copies being reckoned as twelve' frequently prove a stumbling-block to authors and to the partisans of authors' rights. It is equivalent, of course, to a loss to the author of about eight and a quarter copies of his book in every hundred copies sold, and in making a commission-agreement especially, the author may feel disposed to resent this apparent extortion on the part of the publishers. On the other hand, the publisher says that, in a very large number of cases, he has to supply the trade—i.e., booksellers and exporters—on these terms. It would be especially unfair to him in a commission-agreement that he should account to the author for copies as sold which he has actually supplied as odd or thirteenth copies; in a royalty-agreement, where large sales are anticipated, he might consent to waive the point in the author's favour.

A second section of Clause 1 will provide that stereotype plates and copies sold for the American, Indian, and Colonial markets at reduced prices will be calculated at the amounts actually received for them, and the same method of calculation will apply to copies sold in the United Kingdom or elsewhere by auction or privately to a dealer at reduced prices, or by way of remainder. On the other hand, something depends on the class of book to be sold; single copies, or less than half a dozen, may be most in demand, and probably no publisher would object to modify the clause if the circumstances of the case seemed to require it.

The further clauses necessary for such an agreement commonly run as follows. Our comments, where necessary, are made in smaller type :

'3. That the Publishers shall not make any charges for their expenses of bookings packings telegrams and postages or any other ordinary publishing expenses in connection with the sale of the said book and that only the actual postages on Provincial and Foreign Press Copies (where paid) shall be charged.

'4. That the Copyright and Plant of the book shall be the property of the Author.

'5. That the Author shall not be deprived of his share of the sale-proceeds of any copies sold the purchase money whereof shall not be paid to the Publishers.

'6. That the manner of Production Publication Sale and Advertisement of the said work shall in the absence of express agreement to the contrary lie wholly within the discretion of the Publishers.

This description covers the choice of type, selection of binding, arrangements with the trade, and suggestions as to methods of pushing the sale. The author should make up his mind very carefully beforehand how far he wishes to have a voice in these matters.

'7. That the Author shall give the Publishers six calendar months' notice in writing before he remove the publication of the book from them.

'8. That the Publishers shall be entitled to a commission of ten per centum on all sale proceeds and to a commission of five per centum on all advertisements of the book put out by them but that such advertisements shall invariably be charged at the scale prices of the respective papers and journals.

'9. That the Publishers shall annually make up as at the thirtieth of June the accounts of each year and shall render the same to the Author within three months therefrom and shall at the same time pay over any balance which may be found due to the Author.

It is better that these accounts should be rendered semi-annually, but we print the clause in the form in which it is commonly found.

'10. That the Publishers' Day-books and Ledgers shall be open to the inspection of the Author either personally or by agent at any reasonable time after notice given in writing.

'11. That the Author shall be responsible for any action of Libel or of Infringement of Copyright arising out of the publication of the said work and shall indemnify and reimburse the Publishers for any damages cost or charges which they may reasonably incur or be called upon to pay in respect thereof.

'12. That the Author shall be entitled on publication of the book to twelve copies without any charge on the part of the Publishers and to any further copies required at two-thirds the published price (thirteen copies being reckoned as twelve) subject to a further discount of ten per centum (if cash accompany the order) such further copies to appear as sales in the Publishers' accounts.'

The author is obviously entitled to buy his books at the lowest trad terms.

SALE OF COPYRIGHT

Next in order we may take the sale-of-copyright agreement, in which the author is paid for his work on the book by a lump sum for the copyright. Such an agreement conveys the copyright of the book, and vests it in the publisher on publication. There is usually a time-clause as to the date at which the complete manuscript is to be delivered to the publisher, and there should always be a clause fixing (under penalty) the date of publication. Further, there is a clause prohibiting the author from writing or publishing any similar book on the same subject. This clause must be taken for what it is worth. It will readily be seen that it is difficult to state precisely what degree of similarity constitutes an infringement by one book of the copyright of another. If author and publisher signing this clause have reason to mistrust each other, the points of likeness covered by the prohibition should be expressly specified, a condition which can readily be fulfilled in some instances, such as those of books of a highly technical nature, where, indeed, the clause acquires real significance.

The most important clause in such an agreement from the author's point of view, and to a less extent from the publisher's, is the sum to be paid in purchase of the book and rights therein. It is quite impossible for us to give information of any value whatsoever as a guide to authors in this matter. The opinion may be hazarded, however, that the multiplication of would-be authors during the last fifteen or twenty years has created a kind of 'slump' in certain markets. Thus, the prizes recently offered for novels by new writers may tend further to depress the fiction market, and aspirants will find this depression reigning in what publishers call juveniles. Stories of adventure and stories of a Sunday-school or goody-goody type for girls or children command, at this moment, we believe, very low prices, especially from new authors. We are probably not far from the mark in conjecturing that a first offer for such a work would vary from £15 to £25 or £30. Established writers are, of course, better paid. But in no case is it possible to give anything like even an approximate scale of prices for literary wares, though an offer below the rate of £1 per 1,000 words should be regarded in the light of a 'sporting bid.' In agreements of this kind the author, if inexperienced, would probably do well to invoke the opinion of a literary agent before consenting to part with his copyright for a definite sum of money.

DIVISION OF PROFITS

Thirdly, we come to the agreement on a profit-sharing basis. In this case the publisher takes all the risks and cost of publication, either for a single edition of a stated number of copies or for a stated number of editions and for a stated time. If these statements are specified in the agreement, it may be renewed at option at the time of its natural termination. The essential clause of such an agreement is, of course, that which deals with the division of the net profits. The amount of these is reached after deducting all the costs of production and publication, including trade discounts, advertisements, and an allowance for establishment expenses—i.e., clerks' time and other office conveniences. It is obvious that an author is very much at the mercy of his publisher in entering upon such an agreement, for the establishment expenses, proportionate costs of travelling, rent, warehousing, and so forth, as well as the calculation of trade discounts, are extremely difficult in many instances and impossible in others to check. Yet, from the publisher's point of view, these calculations form a considerable item. A simpler way of dealing with them would be for the publisher to state from his own knowledge the proportion borne by establishment charges in his gross profits, and to apply this scale to the particular book; but this method presses hardly on the publisher, as the costs of travelling, etc., in the case of a new book are higher than the average based on the whole of his catalogue. Authors should only enter upon a profit-sharing agreement with the utmost caution and with a most reputable firm, though it forms a convenient arrangement in the case of a book by more than one author. If the publisher retains, say, one-third or one-half of the net profits, the division of the remaining two-thirds or one-half between the several authors is a matter of simple arithmetic.

ROYALTY AGREEMENT

Fourthly, we come to the royalty agreement, which is the commonest and in most instances the fairest method of publication. The essence of a royalty agreement is that the author shall receive a certain sum in respect of every copy of the book sold, and, plainly, the most important part of such an agreement is to determine the amount of the royalty to be paid. Some general considerations suggest themselves at this point. First: It should be fairly obvious that the author may expect to receive a larger royalty as the price of the book increases. Taking the commonest range of prices from 6d. to 10s. 6d., it is clear that a 10 per cent. royalty on a sixpenny book is an almost impossible condition, whereas it would be an extremely small charge on a book published at 10s. 6d. Three-fifths of a penny deducted from a book which may be bought by the public at 4½d., and which is sold by the publisher at any price between 3d. and 4d., is a far heavier deduction than 1s. 0¾d. deducted from a book which may be bought by the public at 7s. 10½d., and for which the publisher receives something over 6s. In the first instance the publisher would have about 2½d. out of which to pay for the production of the book and his own profits; in the latter case he would have about 5s. Secondly: Royalties are paid to the author on the full published price of the book. A 10 per cent. royalty on a 2s. 6d. book is 3d. But the publisher is paid only a trade-price. On a 2s. 6d. net book he will receive, at the best, 2s. 1d., less certain discounts, and for a 2s. 6d. non-net or 'ordinary' book he will receive on an average about 1s. 6d. Accordingly, in paying 3d. to the author, and calling it a 10 per cent. royalty, the publisher is really paying about one-eighth of what he receives on the net price, and about one-sixth of what he receives on the ordinary price, or a $12\frac{1}{4}$ and $16\frac{2}{3}$ per cent. royalty respectively. In justice to publishers, it may be urged that the author who is inclined to cavil at the small figure 10 in a royalty proposal is too frequently ignorant or oblivious of the real facts of the case. Thirdly: In a royalty agreement the publisher bears, as has been said, all the costs of production. He is accordingly considerably out of pocket by producing the book, and even in favourable circumstances he does not recoup his outlay till a thousand copies of the book have been sold. Hence it follows that perhaps the fairest form of royalty agreement is one which provides for a graduated royalty. If the author receives 10 per cent. on the published price of the first thousand copies, he may fairly ask for $12\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. on the published price of the 1,001st to the 2,000th copy, by which time the publisher should also be making his first profits, if the selling price of the book has been fairly adjusted to its production expenses. And if the published price can bear so heavy a deduction, the royalty may then rise by $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. per thousand copies to 20 per cent., which is equivalent, as has been shown above, to a royalty of about 33 per cent., or a little more, on the actual amount received by the publisher for each copy.

ADVANCE ON ROYALTIES

The last consideration to which we would direct the particular attention of authors and publishers, in dealing with a royalty-agreement, is that of a stipulated sum to be handed over in advance of royalties. Such a clause providing that a sum, usually from £20 upwards, shall be paid to the author by the publisher, either on delivery of manuscript, or on the return of the last proof for press, or on publication, has become quite a common demand in recent times at the instance of literary agents or of the authors whose interests they represent. At bottom it amounts to nothing more than the author's borrowing money without interest on a security in which the money-lender has already invested capital, and, looked at from this point of view, there is certainly some force, at least, in the objections made by many reputable publishers to such a transaction. The author's argument is that he is always considerably out of time by his labour on his book, and that he is sometimes even out of pocket for the expenses of typewriting and so forth, and that he may accordingly not unreasonably ask that a part of his future profits shall be paid to him in advance. This plea is tenable enough in the case of authors of established reputation, and of books the profits of which are certain to accrue, and in such cases a moderate request of the kind would probably meet with no serious opposition from the publisher. But in the case of the large majority of books, the total profits on which are not likely to exceed a sum of between £50 and £100, and in the case of authors whose names do not carry much weight with the reading public, and the publication of whose work, therefore, is speculative on the publisher's part, such a demand for a loan without interest can only be supported by the fact that publishers can be found to comply with it. If the author has put his time into the book, the publisher is prepared to put his money and the organized machinery of his business, on which he depends for a livelihood. Both legitimately expect to reap the reward of their investment in the profits that accrue in the future.

The above facts and figures should go far to place the normal facts—we are not dealing with exceptional circumstances—before the prospective author. He will be dealing with a business man, and must be prepared to meet a business point of view. In every particular, a mean must be found between the author's faith in his own book and the publisher's willingness to back it. Thus, the price of a book will be partly determined by the bargain struck between the author and the publisher, which it is the agent's business to make as favourable to the author as he can. If the author is content to back his own faith in his own book, in the sense of accepting a fair royalty on a low price, without power of anticipation, a publisher who likewise believes in the book—and no other is likely to publish it—will similarly be willing to fix the price within the reach of moderate purses, and thus to recoup himself slowly for his outlay on plant, advertisement, travelling, establishment, and on stock. On the other hand, if, as mostly happens, the author's estimate of sales has to be divided by a half, and if, further, he insists on a large payment in advance of royalties, the publisher must either decline the book or must publish it at a price which will bring him back his money within a reasonable period—i.e., at a high price, after which—as always happens—a cheap 'popular' edition becomes a wise speculation. This is the normal course of the successful launching of new authors.

We now come to the memorandum itself:

III. MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT

AFTER what has been said above, the common form of memorandum does not require any lengthy consideration. The order and wording of the clauses will differ from house to house, but must all alike carry out the principles agreed above.

The preamble states that 'This Agreement made' on such-and-such a date 'between' so-and-so 'Publishers [and Exporters] of _____ for themselves their successors and assignees* hereinafter called the Publishers

* The opinion has been expressed that the contract should be personal to the publisher, and not also with his heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns. It will be sufficient to say that no publisher of repute (except under very special circumstances) would, if only in justice to his own creditors, make it a practice to enter into purely personal contracts, and thus destroy the whole conception of a trading concern, converting a genuine commercial enterprise into mere speculations on his own longevity. Even were he to do so, the value of the article to be transferred by the author of the one part and 'so-and-so' of for him

(her) self his (her) heirs executors administrators and assignees hereinafter styled the Author of the other part Witnesseth.

The preamble gives us the essential parties—viz., publisher and author—without further circumlocution. These parties agree as to a sale or lease of the author's property to the publisher on certain terms and conditions. The essence of the agreement follows the technical word witnesseth, and a royalty agreement proceeds thus or to this effect: 'That in consideration that the copyright and plant including therein' such foreign and Colonial rights of translation and reproduction as the author may arrange to part with 'of the work to be written by the Author and entitled provisionally' so-and-so 'shall forthwith belong to and become the property of the Publishers, but subject always to a lien thereon for any sums due to the Author by the Publishers for Royalties, the Publishers hereby agree' [this verb is governed in legal grammar by the first conjunction that after witnesseth] 'to print publish advertise and sell a first edition of' so many 'copies of the said work and as many subsequent editions thereof as they may think desirable and to pay to the Author a Royalty on the sales as hereinafter provided.'

A few commas would improve the appearance of this statement, but punctuation is taboo, as a rule, in such documents. Otherwise, the points worthy of notice are:

1. The stamp duty is reduced to 6d. by describing the book as 'to be written,' and its title as 'provisional.'

2. The transfer of copyright. This clause appears in practically all agreements of this nature, and our advice to authors is never to part with their copyright, but to alter this to 'exclusive right of printing,' an alteration to which no firm of repute should object. The object, of course, is to protect the publisher against the negligent author who would be correspondingly reduced. The word "assigns," however, might advantageously be excluded, as an author may reasonably insist on being made a party to an assignment, seeing that his pecuniary interests are involved and that the assignee may be a less solvent person than the assignor, or even insolvent.

brings out another or very similar edition with a rival firm, and so kills the market for the original edition.

3. 'Their successors and assignees.' We leave these words as they stand in ordinary agreements, but it is extremely desirable (see after Clause 10, below) to provide for the determination of the agreement in the event of certain contingencies, such as a sale to creditors or to a house of inferior standing of the publisher's assets. Much depends upon the status of the firm with which the author is negotiating, and it is in matters of this kind that an agent's advice would be useful, if he would consent to be consulted like a solicitor, and to receive a fee for his services.

4. Foreign and colonial rights vary in value with the nature of the book, and in some cases are nil. When considerable sales out of England are expected, the arrangements should be carefully discussed beforehand, and a publisher selected who has facilities for distribution in other countries. The import duty in the U.S.A. makes a profitable sale increasingly difficult, but, as it is cheaper to print a large edition than a small, a part of the publisher's profit lies in what he saves in his printer's bill. Translation rights, as a rule, fetch only small sums, as they handicap the book with a preliminary fee to the translator before the ordinary production expenses begin. Colonial editions, as such, are very fast falling into disuse; they should carry a royalty proportionate to the selling price of the book in that form.

5. If the author wishes to make stipulations as to advertisements, he must do so at this stage. Some firms advertise much more extensively than others, who rely, perhaps, on better 'travelling' arrangements.

The memorandum now continues :

'And it is hereby further agreed

'1. That the Publishers shall :—

'(a) Produce the book in volume .

'(b) Warehouse the bound and quire stock.

'(c) Deliver the usual Press copies to the London and Provincial Journals.

See note 3 above (under "Commissioning the Publisher," page 32).

' (d) Account annually to the Author for every copy produced.'

Semi-annual renditions are sometimes granted, if desired, and are preferable to annual accounts.

' 2. That the Author's Royalty shall be calculated in manner following :—

' (a) As to copies sold in the United Kingdom at the regular trade price, per centum on the full published price thereof, thirteen copies being reckoned as twelve.

Comment on this clause is governed by the remarks in the foregoing section on 'Author, Publisher, and Agent.' Should a graduated royalty be agreed, as recommended, the clause would run : so much 'per cent. on the full published price of the first thousand' (or so many) 'copies thereof,' so much 'per cent. on that of the next' so many 'copies thereof,' so much 'per cent. on that of the next' so many 'copies thereof,' and so on, '13 copies being reckoned as 12.'

' (b) As to stereotype plates and copies sold for the American, Indian, and Colonial markets at reduced prices, per centum on the amount actually received in respect thereof.

Subject to discussion. Ten per cent. on the actual receipts is often quite fair to the author, as books are sold to the American market at not much above cost price of production. The conditions ruling the transaction in question should be examined on their merits.

' (c) As to copies sold in the United Kingdom by auction, or privately to a dealer at reduced prices, or by way of remainder, per centum on the amount actually received in respect thereof, but the Author shall always have the option of purchasing such remainders from the Publisher at their actual cost of production.'

This clause is not as tautological as it sounds. The remaining copies of an old edition may be sold at reduced prices, though the book itself is not 'remaindered,' as special trade reasons may intervene. Five or ten per cent. is quite a fair proportion to the author, as a rule. Note that the remainder is essential in an author's ~~contract~~ ^{provision} for the author's share in copies sold 'by way of remainder,' it has recently been held in law that the publisher is not liable to pay any royalty on such sales (Farmer v. Lane: Mr. Heinemann's evidence for the defendants). The injustice of this decision in equity is clear, and the author should see that he is protected. The clause should further invariably provide for the first offer of the 'remainder' to be made to the author.

The remaining clauses of the memorandum are as follows, and do not call for special comment beyond what has been given in advance:

'3. That bad debts shall be the charge of the Publishers, the Author not being deprived of any Royalty on copies sold by reason of the sale-proceeds not having been paid to the Publishers.

'4. That the manner of Production, Publication, Sale, and extent of Advertisement of the said work shall in the absence of express agreement to the contrary lie wholly within the discretion of the Publishers.

'5. That the Author shall be liable for the expenses of Author's proof corrections (exclusive of the corrections of Printers' errors) beyond the amount of six shillings per sheet of sixteen pages and that should such charges exceed this amount the Author shall be debited with the excess.

'6. That the Publishers shall annually make up as at the thirtieth of June [or twice a year, as at the thirtieth of June and the thirty-first of December] the accounts of each year and shall on demand render the same to the Author two months thereafter and shall at the same time pay over any balance which may be found due to the Author.

'7. That the Publishers' books shall be open to the inspection of the Author either personally or by agent at any reasonable time after notice given in writing.

'8. That the Author shall be responsible for any action of Libel or Infringement of Copyright arising out of the publication of the said work and shall indemnify and reimburse the Publishers for any damages costs or charges which they may reasonably incur or be called upon to pay in respect thereof.

'9. That the Author shall be entitled to six [or twelve] gratis copies of the said work on publication, and that any further copies required shall be supplied at two-thirds of the published price (thirteen' copies being reckoned as twelve).

'10. That, should the Publishers allow the book to be and remain out of print for a period of [six] months or more, the copyright shall ipso facto revert to and become vested in the Author.'

The payment on account and agency clauses, if included, would follow here, and likewise any special clauses agreed between the parties, such as, for example, a proviso for the termination of the Agreement in the event of the Publisher's bankruptcy.

Comment has been made in certain quarters upon the foregoing forms of agreements on the ground that, in a book designed to assist authors, these agreements err in being too favourable to the publisher, who is well able to look after his own interests. Our reply to this criticism is that the agreements herein set forth are in the form which the majority of publishing houses of repute submit to authors, and are found to work, on the whole, satisfactorily. The Editor's object in the "Literary Year Book" is to deal with facts as they are. The Author's Society is at hand to try (and often to succeed) in moulding facts as they should be; but it seems to us more useful and more practical to take the normal publisher's agreement, and to make it clear to the intending signatory, than to hamper his desire for publication by advising him to demand exceptional or unlikely terms.

THE LIBRARY ASSOCIATION

The Library Association was founded in 1877 as the Library Association of the United Kingdom, and incorporated as 'The Library Association' by royal charter in 1898.

Amongst other work for the good of the library movement, the objects of the Association include the promotion of the better administration of libraries; of the adoption of the Public Libraries Acts; of the union of all persons engaged or interested in library work by holding conferences and meetings for the discussion of bibliographical questions and matters affecting libraries or their regulation or management, or otherwise; the oversight and promotion of legislation; and examinations in librarianship, and the issue of certificates. In connection with the last the Association has instituted classes and examinations, and the efforts of the Education Committee are meeting with the greatest success.

Monthly meetings are held throughout the session from November to June, and a General Meeting takes place annually, usually at the end of August or at the beginning of September.

The Library Association Record, a monthly magazine, is the official organ of the Association, and among many useful and important publications issued by the Association is the Class List of Best Books.

The Association is watching over the whole question of the improvement of book production, and the Sound Leather Committee published a valuable report on leather for bookbinding in 1905. Already many leather manufacturers have risen to the occasion and produced leathers of the necessary standard. President, 1911-12: SIR JOHN DEWAR, Bart. Hon. Treasurer: Mr. HENRY R. TEDDER, F.S.A., The Athenæum, Pall Mall, S.W. Hon. Solicitor:

THE LIBRARY ASSISTANTS' ASSOCIATION

The Library Assistants' Association was founded in 1895 by a few prominent London library assistants, who realized that, in order to organize the growing profession of librarianship, and to procure adequate professional education, some such society was necessary. It differs from the Library Association in being a purely professional body, admitting as members only persons under the rank of chief librarian who are actually engaged in the administration of libraries. It works in consonance with all existing library societies, but is not affiliated to any of them. Its membership consists of Hon. Fellows, Fellows (former members, now Chief Librarians), Members, and Associates. The Association is controlled by a president, vice-president, hon. treasurer, and hon. secretary, and a council of two Fellows and ten London and ten non-London Members and Associates, who are elected annually in June. It holds meetings monthly from October to June at various libraries and institutions in and around London, at which papers are read and discussed. The majority of these papers are written by the members, but nearly every prominent chief librarian in London has contributed to its proceedings. It endeavours to represent every shade of library opinion, and rigorously represses any leaning towards individual systems of method and training. Its inaugural addresses have been delivered by Messrs. Sidney Lee, Sidney Webb, Edmund Gosse, Israel Gollancz, T. J. Macnamara, the Hon. Pember Reeves, Dr. Kenyon, and Dean Inge in recent years. Its objects, as stated in its constitution, are to promote the professional, educational, and social interests of its members by the reading of original papers, by discussions, meetings of a social character, and in other ways. In addition to the monthly meetings, excursions, football, cricket, and other sports are engaged in.

It publishes a journal, the Library Assistant, monthly, which is a record of the proceedings of the Association, and a means of intercommunication between library assistants; this is issued free to members. The officers of the Association are : President : Mr. HENRY T. COUTTS, North Library, Manor Gardens, Holloway, London, N. Vice-President : Mr. H. W. CHECKETTS, Central Library, Birmingham. Hon. Treasurer : Mr. W. GEO. CHAMBERS, Public Library, Plumstead. Hon. Editor : Mr. H. RUTHERFORD PURNELL, Central Library, Croydon. Hon. Secretary : Mr. W. C. BERWICK SAYERS, Central Library, Town Hall, Croydon.

The Association has six vigorous branches. The Yorkshire branch has its centre at Leeds, and holds bi-monthly meetings. President : Mr. J. C. HANDBY, Bradford ; Hon. Secretary : Mr. N. TRELIVING, Woodhouse Moor Library, Leeds.

The Association of Assistant Librarians is the Irish branch. This has its centre at Belfast, and holds monthly meetings. Chairman : Mr. T. M. COULSON, Belfast ; Hon. Secretary : Mr. W. MOORE, Central Library, Belfast.

The North-Eastern Branch was founded in 1908, and embraces the assistant librarians in Northumberland, Durham, and Cumberland, and holds quarterly meetings. Chairman : Mr. W. WILSON, Gateshead ; Hon. Secretary : Mr. R. M. DANIEL, Central Public Library, South Shields.

The South Wales Branch was also formed in 1908. It embraces all South Wales and the South-Western counties, and holds monthly meetings. Chairman : Mr. R. G. WILLIAMS, Cardiff ; Hon. Secretary : Miss J. TAYLOR, Central Public Library, Cardiff.

The Midland Branch was constituted in December, 1909, and has its centre at Birmingham. Chairman : Mr. H. W. CHECKETTS, Central Library, Birmingham ; Hon. Secretary : Mr. F. J. PATRICK, Public Library, Birmingham.

LONDON.

The London Government Act, in some cases, formed Boroughs of several existing Vestries. The Libraries so amalgamated are sometimes administered by sub-committees, and an endeavour has been made to give the fullest details of all the Boroughs.

British Museum Reading Room, Great Russell Street, Bloomsbury, W.C. (1753). The number of books cannot be stated exactly, probably three and a half to four millions.

ADMISSION.—This is granted (to applicants over twenty-one years of age) on receipt of a recommendation by a householder who is personally acquainted with the applicant. The particular purpose for which admission is sought must also be indicated in the letter of application. This must be sent by post two days at least before admission is required. The ticket is usually for three or six months. When asking for renewal, it is necessary to return the old ticket. Tickets must be returned when no longer required. Applicants under twenty-one years of age require the Trustees' special permission.

All tickets are strictly non-transferable, and must be shown, if required, before entering the room. For the Students' Room of the Department of MSS., the Print Room, etc., a separate ticket is required, subject to the same conditions as to its granting, etc., as for the Reading Room.

No sticks or umbrellas are permitted in the rooms; overcoats should also be left with the cloak-room officials.

Rooms.—Besides the Newspaper Room (on the right of the main entrance), which also contains the London Gazette, Journals of the House of Commons, and other Parliamentary papers, and the Print Room (open from 10 a.m. till 5 p.m.), there is the Rotunda. The latter is the Reading Room (for Hours, see p. 106).

APPLICATION FOR BOOKS.—Round the central desk, occupied by the Superintendent and his attendants, will be seen boxes of printed slips. These are filled in, as indicated, from the Catalogues, the chief items to note being the correct press-mark of the book, and the number of the reader's seat. The other particulars—i.e., date of publication, title and author of the book—are also, however, of importance, and not to be omitted by those desiring to be served without delay. The slips are placed in baskets at the centre counter, the reader returning to his desk to await the books, a matter usually of between ten and thirty minutes, according to the pressure of work and the portion of the library in which the books are stored. No applications are received after 3.30 p.m. in January, February, November, and December; 4.30 p.m. in March and October; 5.30 p.m. in April and September; and 6.30 p.m. in the summer months. When reading is over for the day the reader restores the books to the centre desk, receiving in exchange the slips, which, unless he intends using the same book or books again within the next few days, are best destroyed. Readers are held responsible for books until the slips have been re-delivered to them.

KEPT BOOKS.—Books are kept, by request, subject to no other reader putting in a ticket for them during the absence of the reader for whom they are put aside. In each book a slip of paper must be placed, across the top of which (so as to be legible without opening the book) are written the date and reader's name. There are special baskets at Bar A and Bar T for slips of "kept" books, and the latter are usually brought round within a few minutes.

THE BAR.—It is sometimes impossible for a reader to spend any time at the Reading Room until after the latest hour for putting in application slips in the ordinary way. In such cases it is permitted to send the slips, filled in beforehand, by post, to be delivered at the Museum, some hours before the books are actually wanted. Instead of filling in any desk-number the applicant marks Bar A or Bar T, and the books are kept for him in the cages on either side of the central desk until called for later in the day. "Kept" books, if not called for within a day or two, are returned to the shelves.

REFERENCE SHELVES.—In addition to the bulk of the collection, which is only available as indicated in the foregoing remarks, there are on the shelves on the ground floor of the Rotunda itself some 20,000 reference volumes, ranging through history, geography and travel, and every science, down to such works of reference as encyclopædias, lexicons, directories, and the like. These the reader is permitted to take down for himself, but must replace on the proper shelf when he has finished using them. With regard to the encyclopædias, dictionaries, etc., these must be returned to the shelves as soon as done with, and in some cases must be consulted at the shelf. In Continental libraries readers are not permitted to carry off to their own desks reference works of this description.

CATALOGUES.—The AUTHOR Catalogue, stretching in double row around the central desk, is now, in its printed form, condensed to about 970 volumes. In the way of CLASS Catalogues, which for the most part exist in the unrealized dreams of successive generations of librarians, we have Fortescue's exceedingly useful SUBJECT INDEX, and Poole's likewise valuable INDEX TO PERIODICALS. A new edition of Fortescue's SUBJECT INDEX, 1881-1900, has now been printed, as also an additional volume for the years 1901-1905. These aids to reference are, with their respective supplements, to be found next the central desk. There are, in addition to these, special catalogues of manuscripts, music, and maps, and useful bibliographies on every subject are to be found in the cases at the end of the readers' desks.

TRACING.—Application must be made to the Superintendent for permission.

The READING ROOM is open on week-days (except the first four days in March and September, Good Friday, Christmas Day, and days appointed by authority), from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., throughout the year.

The NEWSPAPER ROOM, which is under the same regulations as the Reading Room, is open January, February, 10 a.m. to 3.50 p.m.; March, 10 a.m. to 4.50 p.m.; April to August, 10 a.m. to 5.50 p.m.; September, October, 10 a.m. to 4.50 p.m.; November; December, 10 a.m. to 3.50 p.m.

The Room is closed on Sundays, Good Friday, Christmas Day, and the first four week-days of March and September.

The STUDENTS' ROOM, DEPARTMENT OF MSS., is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., it being required that all MSS. be given up at 4.45 p.m. The Room is closed at certain times, as in the case of the Reading and Newspaper Rooms.

The PRINT ROOM and the ORIENTAL STUDENTS' ROOM are open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Director and Principal Librarian, Sir FREDERIC GEORGE KENYON, K.C.B., D.Litt., F.B.A.; Keeper of Printed Books, A. W. KAYE, M.Litt.; Keeper of MSS., J. P. GILSON, M.A.; Keeper of Oriental Printed Books and MSS., Dr. L. D. BARRETT; Keeper of Prints and Drawings, CAMPBELL DODGSON, M.A.

I. BRITISH AND IRISH PERIODICAL PUBLICATIONS AND CONTRIBUTORS' GUIDE

NOTE —D=Daily, W=Weekly, M=Monthly, Q=Quarterly, A=Annual.
The vast majority of papers review books sent to them. Prices, Publishing Offices, Editors' Names, and in many cases the years of foundation, are given in this list. An asterisk (*) implies illustration.

NOTE.—The particulars added for the guidance of would-be contributors have been supplied in almost all cases by the editors of the periodicals themselves, and the proprietor of the "Literary Year-Book" cannot be held responsible for any loss or disappointment which may be incurred by contributors. Periodicals which discourage outside contributions have no such particulars added.

THE following instructions are given for convenience of reference, in the hope that they will be of service to writers, and indirectly to those editors who are overwhelmed with matter which is sent without reference to the simple and necessary rules that prevail in all well-conducted offices. A vast amount of trouble is caused to those who deal with MSS. by the want of consideration that characterizes the methods of a large proportion of occasional correspondents.

1. All MSS. should be typewritten. Editors, as a rule, will consent to read written "copy," but typewritten matter has a greater chance of being read quickly.

2. MSS. must be written on one side of the paper only. This rule is made for the convenience of printers. The "copy" which is given out to compositors is nearly always cut into small sections; consequently a MS. which is written on both sides of the paper cannot be readily dealt with.

3. It is most important to use discretion and judgment in the matter of submitting MSS. These should not be sent round indiscriminately; the character and tone of each publication should be studied, and an agent's advice consulted if necessary. The classified index at the end of this section (pages 241 to 249) will be found of great assistance in selecting a suitable publication.

4. Writers should be very careful to ascertain the correct style and address of the paper to which they are submitting their efforts. Magazine addresses frequently change. It is, in fact, essential for those who wish to succeed to be accurate in every particular, even in those matters which involve merely technical detail.

5. Letters to editors are not, as a rule, necessary. Each MS. should have clearly placed upon the first page the author's name and address. A fully stamped and addressed envelope for return of the MS. should always be enclosed.

6. Proposals to submit MSS. to editors should only be sent in exceptional cases. No interviews must be expected by contributors, except those which are invited by the editor.

Many of the remarks given at the head of the "British Periodicals' List" are applicable here, with the addition of the following :

1. Some American magazines are apt to make changes in editorial policy—i.e., their requirements may change with change of editor, but, usually, known contributors are notified of this.

2. A better idea of their requirements may often be obtained by perusal of the current numbers of the magazines themselves, rather than by what can be got from a necessarily short description of contents.

3. When selling a MS. in the United States or Canada, care should be exercised concerning copyrights, the majority of U.S.A. periodicals buying outright. Many of the better class of U.S.A. monthlies also obtain, and rigorously adhere to, their rights of copyright in the British Dominions, while the Canadian copyright is usually included in the sale either to the average British or American periodical, unless otherwise stipulated.

4. MSS. and informative letter should not be sent separately, a course against which the usual U.S.A. editorial department vigorously protests, as it entails separate entries in the receiving book and disarrangement in departmental routine. An envelope, large enough to take the MS. folded twice, should be enclosed for return if not accepted. Preferably it should be stamped, though some editorial departments do not object to the inclusion of a postal coupon instead. This coupon, to the value of 5 cents, can be obtained at any post-office within the British Isles, Canada, British Columbia, New Zealand, and the majority of British Possessions, excepting the Commonwealth of Australia, where such coupons are neither valid nor accepted.

5. MSS. can be sent by "Commercial Papers" Rate ($2\frac{1}{2}$ d. the first 10 ounces and $\frac{1}{2}$ d. per 2 ounces thereafter), which applies both to and from the U.S.A. and all other countries in the Postal Union, but such packets must be left with the ends open for inspection if necessary. Now that the letter post to the U.S.A. is reduced to 1d. the ounce, contributors may find it more convenient to send their MSS. thus to avoid being tampered with by Customs officials en route.

CONTRIBUTORS' INDEX TO PERIODICALS

NOTE.—The Index is designed to show contributors the most suitable papers to which to submit articles, stories, or any other literary work. The periodicals indexed correspond with those contained in the full lists preceding this; but for obvious reasons annual directories and similar compilations without any opening for outside contributions have been omitted. This category includes those periodicals which refuse to consider matter submitted to them, and daily and weekly newspapers of the usual type, except those taking fiction either in the form of serials or short stories. Newspapers are primarily a medium for the circulation of news, and offer few, if any, openings for articles of the general sort. Most specials, or "middles," as the day's articles are sometimes termed, are commissioned—i.e., given out to a specialist on the particular subject—although occasionally even so conservative a paper as The Times accepts outside specials. But such cases as those are so rare that they do not justify the inclusion of newspapers pur et simple in this list. Reviews, too, both in general periodicals and literary papers, are invariably commissioned. The same remarks also apply to loaders.

The classification is primarily taken from the details given by the periodicals, but where these are insufficient the information has been obtained from other sources. It has been found impossible to give details of the length of articles, as very few publications have a hard-and-fast rule in this respect; the majority prefer something between 1,000 and 2,000 words, although the monthlies frequently publish articles as long as 6,000 words.

An asterisk * shows that the periodical is illustrated with drawings or photographs.

Periodicals marked with a dagger (†) will be found in the "American Periodicals" List; those marked (‡) in the "Indian Periodicals" List, and those marked (§) in the "Canadian Periodicals" List.

¹ The larger number of periodicals is illustrated at the present day, but most of these are commissioned—i.e., they are illustrations drawn to order for stories or matter already written. Some, however, take outside drawings and photography. Papers and magazines taking illustrations on special subjects will be found under those subjects. Periodicals taking humorous drawings will be found under 'Humour,' and a few magazines occasionally take cover illustrations. Most of the full-page illustrations in the weekly illustrated periodicals are drawn by the art staff.

THE NOBEL FOUNDATION AND THE NOBEL PRIZES

(Reprinted from The Author with the kind permission of the Incorporated Society of Authors.)

ALFRED BERNHARD NOBEL, the inventor of dynamite, died in 1896, leaving the residue of his great fortune, estimated at about £2,000,000 sterling, for the foundation of five annual prizes, to be awarded for the most important discoveries in physics, chemistry, and physiology or medicine, for the most remarkable work of an idealist tendency, and for the greatest service rendered to the cause of peace during the year. The value of each prize is about £8,000.

An official French translation of the statutes and regulations relating to the Nobel Foundation has been issued. The original documents received the sanction of the King of Sweden on June 29, 1900.

It will be seen that the text of the will has received a liberal interpretation. In addition to the prizes, provision is made for the establishment of Nobel institutes where researches may be carried on, and of special funds from which grants may be given to promote the objects which the founder had at heart; and both institutes and special funds are likely, to say the least, to be quite as productive of good as the great prizes.

It will be noticed that the benefits of the foundation are to be open to all nationalities without distinction. No restriction of sex is mentioned in the statutes.

The Nobel Foundation is based on the will of Dr. Alfred Bernhard Nobel, dated November 27, 1895, of which the following passage contains the stipulations with regard to the foundation: "The residue of my realizable property left after my death shall be disposed of as follows: The capital, invested in safe investments by the executors of my will, shall constitute a fund of which the interest shall be distributed annually as a reward to such persons as have rendered to humanity the greatest services during the preceding year. The total amount shall be divided into five equal parts, and allotted, one [part] to the person who has made the most important discovery or invention in the physical sciences; another [part] to the person who has made the most important discovery or the greatest improvement in chemistry; the third to the author of the most important discovery in the domain of physiology or medicine; the fourth to the person who has produced the most remarkable literary work of an idealist tendency; and, finally, the fifth to the person who has done most, or laboured best, for the cause of fraternity among different peoples, for the suppression or reduction of standing armies, or for the formation and promotion of peace congresses.

"The prizes shall be awarded as follows: For physics and chemistry by the Swedish Academy of Sciences; for work in physiology and medicine by the Caroline Institute of Stockholm; for literature by the Stockholm Academy; and, finally, for the cause of peace, by a commission of five members elected by the Norwegian Storting. It is my express desire that in the award of the prizes no account shall be taken of nationality, so that each prize may go to the most worthy, whether he be Scandinavian or not."

An agreement was made with certain heirs to a smaller portion of Dr. Nobel's property, by which they renounced the inheritance for themselves and their heirs, on the express condition that—

- (a) The general statutes regulating the award of the prizes by the competent authorities should be drawn up in concert with a delegate representing the Robert Nobel family, and submitted for approval to the King of Sweden.
- (b) That certain permanent regulations, stated below, should be passed with regard to the award of the prizes.

I.—THE STATUTES.

(1) The General Fund.

1. The General Fund is to be controlled by a council of administration, composed of five members, of Swedish nationality, sitting at Stockholm. The president is to be nominated by the King of Sweden. The four other members are to be elected by a body of fifteen representatives, chosen by the corporate bodies named in the will. (See 2, below.)

A deputy is also to be elected to act in the absence of the president, and two deputies are to be elected for each of the other members of the council.

The members and deputies will be elected in future for a period of two years, the term of office beginning on May 1. But two of the members of the first council, selected by lot, will retire, after a single year of office, so that in future two may retire annually.

The council will elect one of its members as "director and administrator" (directeur-gérant).

2. Of the fifteen representatives, six are to be chosen by the Academy of Sciences (for the two sections of physics and chemistry), and three are to be chosen by each of the other corporate bodies. In addition, the Academy of Sciences will nominate four deputy-representatives, and each of the other corporate bodies two, to act for representatives prevented from so doing.

The representatives will hold office for two years. They will elect a president from among their number. Nine representatives will form a quorum.

In certain cases the representatives may be called on to control the management of the foundation by the council.

3. The functions of the council include the payment of the money value of prizes to the prize-winners and the payment on requisition of all expenses incurred in the award of prizes, the payment of sums due to the Nobel Institutes, and of sums required for all other purposes.

4. One-tenth of the net annual revenue from the General Fund is to be added to the capital; and the interest on sums for prizes not awarded is also to be added to the capital till such sums have been returned to the General Fund or transferred to a special fund.

(2) The Nobel Prizes.

1. The prizes are to be awarded as a rule annually.

2. For a work to be admitted to compete for a prize it must have been printed and published.

3. In order to be admitted to the competition, each work must be proposed in writing by some person or body of persons qualified to do so. Regulations defining the categories of persons qualified to propose works for the competitions are given below under the special regulations for the various sections. No person may propose his own work.

4. Each proposal must be accompanied by the written works and documents on which the proposal is based, and by a written statement in support of the proposal. The corporate body with whom the award of a prize lies shall be dispensed from proceeding to a detailed examination of any proposal in the following cases: (1) If the proposal or works presented are not written either in one of the Scandinavian languages, or in English, French, German, or Latin; (2) if the majority of the corporate body in question would be required, in order to appreciate the proposed work, to acquaint themselves with a memoir written in a language of which the interpretation would entail special difficulties or considerable expense.

5. The proposals received from the previous 1st of February to the 1st of February in each year shall be considered together. The will prescribes that prizes shall be awarded for work done "in the preceding year," but this expression is to be taken to mean "that the object of the awards shall be [as a rule] the most recent fruit of efforts in the fields designated in the will, but [that it may be] older work in [exceptional] cases where its importance has only recently been demonstrated."

6. If no work be regarded as deserving of a prize in any section the amount of the prize is to be held over until the next year; if the prize be not awarded then, the money may be either returned to the General Fund by the corporate body concerned or invested to form a special fund for the section, the income from which is to be used to promote the chief objects of the founder, otherwise than by the award of a prize. (See also under special funds, below.) In accordance with an agreement made with certain heirs of Nobel, referred to above, it is stipulated, for all future time, that in each section a prize shall be awarded at least once in each consecutive period of five years; and that the value of the prize given shall not be less than sixty per cent. (60 %) of the total amount available of the prize, and that it shall not be divided into more than three prizes. The present statutes provide that the amount of the prize may be equally divided between two works, both being judged worthy of the prize.

A prize may be awarded to the joint work of two or more collaborators.

The corporate bodies are allowed to decide if prizes within their respective jurisdictions may or may not be awarded to an institution or a society.

7. The four prizes for physics, chemistry, literature, and medicine will be awarded by the corporate bodies named in the will, after receiving a report in each case from a special committee, to be called a Nobel committee, and consisting of three or five members elected by the corporate body concerned. The "Peace" prize will be awarded by a commission of the Norwegian Storting in accordance with the terms of the will. Members of the Nobel committees and of the commission of the Storting may be of foreign nationality. In special cases the corporate bodies concerned may add to the Nobel committees additional members possessing special competence.

Members of the Nobel committees may receive a suitable remuneration for their work, to be fixed by the corporate body concerned.

8. Against the decisions with regard to the award of prizes no appeal can be made.

If in the deliberations with regard to the award any difference of opinion should arise, it shall neither be mentioned in the minutes of the proceedings nor otherwise revealed in any way.

9. A solemn assembly will be held on the 10th of December in each year, the anniversary of the death of the founder, at which the corporate bodies charged with the award of the prizes will publicly announce their decisions, and will present to each successful candidate an order for the amount of his prize, a diploma, and a gold medal bearing the effigy of the donor, and an appropriate inscription.

10. Each prizeman is bound, unless he is prevented from doing so (à moins d'empêchement), to deliver a public lecture on the subject of the work for which the prize was awarded. The lecture in the case of the first four prizes is to be delivered at Stockholm, in the case of the "Peace" prize at Christiania.

II.—SPECIAL REGULATIONS FOR THE SECTION OF LITERATURE.

1. The corporate body for the section is the Swedish Academy.

According to the statutes, the term "literature" in the will is intended to apply not only to purely literary works, but to all other works possessing from their form and style literary value.

The Nobel Prize in Literature.

2. The following institutions and persons are to be entitled to nominate competitors for the prizes, in accordance with the statutes :

(i.) Members of the Swedish Academy (referred to hereafter as "the Academy") and members of the French Academy and the Spanish Academy, which resemble this Academy in their organization and aims.

(ii.) Members of the literary sections of other Academies and members of literary societies similar to Academies.

(iii.) University professors of æsthetics, literature, and history.

This regulation is to be published at least once every five years in an official journal or in one of the newspapers most widely read in the three Scandinavian countries and the principal countries of the civilized world.

The Nobel Literary Institute.

3. The institute will include an important library devoted chiefly to modern literature. The Academy will nominate a librarian, with one or more assistant librarians, and also a number of qualified literary assistants, titular and supernumerary, whose duty it will be to draw up reports on questions relating to the prize and on recent foreign literature, and to execute such translations of foreign works as may be required.

The institute will be placed under the supervision of an inspector nominated by the King of Sweden, and under the immediate direction of one of the members of the Academy nominated specially by this body.

The Special Fund for Literature.

4. The Academy has power to use the special fund to encourage, in accordance with the chief objects of the founder, all literary activity, in Sweden and abroad, of such kind as may be regarded as of importance to civilization, especially in the intellectual domain to which it is the duty of the Academy to devote its attention and care. (See below.)

III.—THE CORPORATE BODIES MENTIONED IN THE WILL OF THE FOUNDER.

The Royal Academy of Sciences (Kongl. Vetenskaps Akademien) of Stockholm was founded in 1739. Its present statutes bear the date July 13, 1850. Its object is to encourage the sciences, to aid in their development, and to spread scientific knowledge by means of printed publications.

The King of Sweden is the patron of the Academy, which includes a hundred Swedish and Norwegian and seventy-five foreign members. The national members are divided into nine sections, as follows:

- I. Pure Mathematics.
- II. Applied Mathematics.
- III. Applied Mechanics
- IV. Physical Sciences.
- V. Chemistry, Geology, and Mineralogy.
- VI. Botany and Zoology.
- VII. The Medical Sciences.
- VIII. Technology, Economics, and Statistics.
- IX. The Sciences and Scientific Professions generally.

The president of the Academy is elected annually, and there are several other officers, including a perpetual secretary, whose special business it is to manage the affairs of the Academy.

The Swedish Academy (Svenska Akademien) of Stockholm was founded on March 20, 1786, by Gustavus III., and at the same time received its statutes, which are still in force. It is devoted to literature, including both prose and poetry; and the chief object of the Academy is to labour for the purity, the vigour, and the elevation of the Swedish language, in scientific works, and especially in the various branches of poetry and prose, including those which serve for the interpretation of religious truths. It is the duty of the Academy to compile a dictionary and a grammar of the Swedish language, and to publish treatises tending to strengthen and develop literary taste (le bon goût). The Academy awards annual prizes for competitions in prose and poetry. The King is the patron of the Academy. The Academy includes eighteen members, who must be of Swedish nationality. The officers include a director, a chancellor, and a perpetual secretary.

The Royal Caroline Institute of Medicine and Surgery (Kongl. Karolinska Medico-Kirurgiska Institutet) of Stockholm dates from the year 1815. The statutes at present in force received the sanction of the King of Sweden on April 29, 1836. Incorporated in 1884 under the Presidency of Lord Tennyson. On Lord Tennyson's death Mr. George Meredith was elected President; to him succeeded Mr. Thomas Hardy in 1909. Its main objects are the maintenance, definition, and defence of literary, dramatic, and musical property and the work of black-and-white artists, the consolidation of the laws of Domestic Copyright, and the promotion of International Copyright. The general work of the Society, with much information on technical subjects, will be found in the pages of The Author, published monthly, and now in its sixteenth volume. Rome, British School at. This school, projected in 1899, was opened in the spring of 1901, and has been modelled, in many respects, on the existing British School at Athens. Objects—The School is intended, first, as a training-ground for students fresh from the universities and other educational institutions; secondly, as a centre round which more mature students may group themselves for purposes of systematic research; and, thirdly, as a source of information and advice for visitors desiring to pursue serious studies in Rome and Italy. The province of the School is not purely archæological, but includes all periods of Roman and Italian history, art, antiquities, and literature. The excavation of ancient sites, which has formed an important part of the work of the School at Athens, is excluded in Italy by the rules of the Italian Government. But in other respects the work of the Roman School is more varied than that of the Athenian, since the range of studies which centre in Rome is wider, including, for example, palæography, Christian as well as classical antiquities, and the art and architecture of the Renaissance.

At present the annual income of the School is about £1,000, of which £500 is received from H.M. Government. The continuance of this grant mainly depends on the amount of support accorded by the public. The Director of the School is Dr. ASHBY. Further information will be supplied by the Secretary JOHN FF. BAKER PENNYRE, Esq., M.A., 19 Bloomsbury Square, W.C., or by any other member of the committee. Subscription and donations are urgently needed. A FEW OF THE BIBLIOGRAPHICAL AND TYPOGRAPHICAL TERMS IN MORE GENERAL USE

BOOKS are defined respectively as folio, quarto (4to), octavo (8vo), duodecimo (12mo), sextodecimo (16mo), octodecimo (18mo), vigesimo-quarto (24mo), trigesimo-secundo (32mo), etc. These definitions are arrived at by the number of times a sheet is folded; for instance, a folio would be two leaves to the sheet, a quarto four leaves, and so on. Sometimes it is difficult to distinguish, say, an octavo from a quarto; but if it is printed on a laid paper, the water-lines that run at intervals through the sheet (not to be confused with the smaller and closer wire-marks of the sheet) will determine this. The water-lines on a folio, octavo, and octodecimo would be perpendicular; on a quarto, duodecimo, and sextodecimo, horizontal. The signatures or letters placed at the foot of the first, and sometimes the third, page also serve as a guide to identification.

SOME BOOK AND OTHER FOUNTS OF TYPE.

IN giving to our readers this selection of book and other founts employed by the printer, it should be noted that Nos. 1, 2, and 3 are essentially the three classes of type mostly used for book printing, whereas Nos. 4, 5, 6, and 7, although occasionally seen in book work of a more unusual character, are generally classed as fancy types. Two forms of Gothic, Nos. 8 and 9, are shown as examples of old and modern black letter. The example No. 10 is a somewhat heavy face of type sometimes used for book work, a fashion set by the Kelmscott Press, which was established by the late William Morris in the last decade of the nineteenth century.

The other examples are but a few only of the very many jobbing or fancy types in use, and those shown are more or less representative of certain classes of founts of which there are endless varieties, some of which run riot in design and are but mere travesties of the original form of the alphabet. Those now shown are perhaps sufficient and varied enough to enable the publisher or author to indicate to the printer in a general way types he may be desirous of using for either book printing or display work.

A word as to the employment of these types may not be out of place here. For the printing of books it may be taken, as already explained, that Nos. 1, 2, and 3 represent in a broad sense the three kinds of type almost universally used. No. 1, the Caslon Old Face, cut in the eighteenth century, is best adapted for the printing of books of an antiquarian character, whereas No. 2, which is the revived Old Style Face, and which was introduced about the middle of last century, may be employed for most books with good effect, as may be seen in the LITERARY YEAR-BOOK itself. No. 3 is the so-called Modern Face, although it is really a survival of those founts which came into use in the early part of the nineteenth century. This character is mostly used for newspaper or official work, and not so much for the printing of books. We have also mentioned that Nos. 4, 5, 6, and 7 are sometimes used for the printing of books, but they are really best adapted for pamphlet and other commercial work. The Clarendon examples (Nos. 11, 12, 13, 14) are adapted mostly for side headings or emphasized passages in books such as dictionaries, and the few remaining examples of jobbing types are best for display matter or advertisements. Many of these latter founts consist of capitals and figures only, and do not include the small or ordinary lowercase letters.

AGENTS

(i) BRITISH

This list consists of the names of Press and Literary Agents, whose work includes the arrangement of books and articles for publication and all commercial negotiations concerning them, together with the general management of literary property.

AUTHORS' ALLIANCE (THE), 2 Clement's Inn, W.C., and 50 Church Street, New York. Manager: HATHERLEY CLARKE. The Authors' Alliance is an association of authors, journalists, editors, and publishers' readers, who place their services at the disposal of authors, dramatists, and literary workers and aspirants generally. Its managers possess nearly twenty years' practical experience in every department of literary work, and are able to offer expert advice and assistance, while their facilities for placing MSS. with publishers are unrivalled. The Alliance works in the interests of the author, its aim being in all cases to protect the author's interests and to promote his literary success. It also acts as agent for artists and illustrators, and has every facility for placing good work advantageously. (See Advertisement, p. xxv.)

AUTHORS' AND PLAYWRIGHTS' AGENCY, 4 Holles Street, Cavendish Sq., W. The managers have had a long experience in dramatic, literary, and journalistic work, and undertake to devote themselves to furthering the best interests of their clients. They advise authors upon MSS. submitted, when desired to do so, and employ all the facilities at their disposal to bring their clients' work to the attention of managers of theatres, editors, and publishers, conducting negotiations for the production of plays and for the sale of fiction and general MSS. for publication. Authors of plays may, for a fee of £2 2s., have the advantage of a signed, critical opinion on their work by the well-known dramatist, Mr. F. C. Phillips. (See Advertisement opposite.)

AUTHORS' SYNDICATE, 3-7 Southampton Street, Strand, W.C. Founded 1890. This record was beaten March 13 to 19, 1909, during which week the Agency sold one novel, twenty-four short stories, and four articles. The policy of the C.L.A. is to deal with only suitable matter, and it is forced to refuse considerably over one thousand MSS. annually that do not reach the Agency's standard. This careful selection is the secret of the C.L.A.'s phenomenal success. The obtaining of the best possible terms and the highest prices is the aim of this firm, and it has numerous testimonials in proof of its good offices in this important direction. Telephone: 1648 Gerrard. WATT, MESSRS. A. P., & SON, Hastings House, Norfolk Street, Strand, w.c. To Mr. A. P. Watt, the senior member of the firm, is due the rise of the literary agent. He was the first to conceive and put into practice the idea of the literary agent, acting as an intermediary between authors and publishers and editors. Messrs. A. P. Watt & Son are at all times glad to hear from authors, whether at the beginning of their career or of established reputation, with a view to the disposal of their work. A good idea of the value to authors of Messrs. A. P. Watt & Son's Literary Agency is given in the following extract from the Autobiography of the late Sir Walter Besant: "Let me here express my great and lasting gratitude to my agents, Mr. A. P. Watt and his son, by whose watch and ward my interests have been so carefully guarded for eighteen years. During that time I have always been engaged for three years in advance; I have been relieved from every kind of pecuniary anxiety; my income has been multiplied by three at least; and I have had, through them, the offer of a great deal more work than I could undertake. I cannot speak too strongly of the services rendered to me by my literary agents. Of course, there are different kinds of agents. There is the agent, for example, who knows nothing about his business. But the agent who does know his business, who knows also editors, publishers, and their arrangements, may be of immense use to the novelist, the essayist, the traveller—in short, to the author of any book that can command a circulation and a public demand. And such an agent is Mr. A. P. Watt." Amongst the many clients of the firm are: The Rt. Hon. A. J. Balfour, M.P., Miss Braddon, Mr. and Mrs. Egerton Castle, Mr. G. K. Chesterton, the Rt. Hon. INDEXERS OF

Biography, Reminiscences, Travels, History; Scientific, Legal, and Critical Works, Official Reports,
Minutes of Evidence, etc.

C The Public are hasty critics. A good index enables them to find what they want at once, and to return to it immediately when requisite. It is indispensable in saving time. "I venerate the inventor of indexes," said Isaac Disraeli. An index, properly compiled, makes many a work acceptable which otherwise would be rejected. Briefly, it is salient.

C Authors are seldom the best indexers of their own books. As the looker-on sees most of the game, so the trained indexer exercises his penetration and judgment in selecting alphabetically those references which have the greatest value and public interest.

N.B.—Charges strictly moderate, and in accordance with the class of books to be indexed and the number of references required by clients.

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS (London Warehouse FETTER LANE, LONDON, E.C.; and at 100 PRINCES STREET EDINBURGH.). The list of Cambridge printers begins with the name of John Siberch, who printed at Cambridge in 152 Linacre's translation of Galen, De Temperamentis, and other works. It is said that about 1522 the Stationers Company on some complaint of privilege, seized the University printing press, but from the year 1584 to the present time printing has been continuously carried on. The name Pitt Press strictly applies only to a part of the present buildings, which were erected in 1831 with money subscribed as a memorial to William Pitt. Up to the year 1873 the publishing business of the University was conducted through the agency of various London publishers, but in that year the University established its own publishing warehouse at 17 Paternoster Row; in 1884 the business was removed to Ave Maria Lane and in 1905 to Fetter Lane. The publishing business was in the first instance managed by Mr. C. J. Clay, who was University printer from 1854 to 1894. It is now conducted under the management of his son, Mr. C. F. Clay.

The University Press, using its privileges to the full, publishes editions of the Bible and Prayer Book in every variety of size, type and binding. In recent years one of the great undertakings of the Press has been the publication of the Revised Version of the Bible: the New Testament was published in 1881, the complete Old Testament in 1885, the Apocrypha in 1897, and in 1905 the Interlinear Bible, showing the Authorized and Revised Versions at a glance.

As general publishers the Press issues works of learning ranging from elementary school books to the most elaborate mathematical and scientific treatises, as well as several scientific serials. Among the most important recent publications are the new (11th) edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica, in 29 volumes, The Cambridge Medieval History, planned by Professor J. B. Bury, in 8 volumes, and The Cambridge History of English Literature, in 14 volumes, edited by the Master of Peterhouse and Mr. A. R. Waller, the first nine volumes of which are now ready.

ROYALTIES

AUTHORS will find the following tables useful whenever they adopt the method of payment by results known as royalties. It is somewhat difficult at times in publishers' accounts to ascertain the exact sum due to the author when x copies of his book have been sold at the price of y shillings, on which a royalty of z per cent. is due to the author. The following tables are intended to facilitate this calculation by reducing the somewhat laborious test of complicated multiplication to a simple process of addition. The matter is further complicated by the general practice of publishers accounting to authors for sales on the basis of 13 as 12 (or sometimes 25 as 24), which they generally grant to the retail booksellers. There are accordingly two sets of tables, one in order to reduce 13 to 12 (or 13 to 12½), and the remainder to ascertain the exact amount due on different systems of royalty and on price books. Thus, if 936 of a 5s. book have been sold on which a royalty of 10 per cent. is due, the first table will enable the calculator to ascertain that 936 could only be reckoned as 864, and from the fourth column of the table devoted to 5s. the royalties for 800, for 60, and for 4 are already given, and the final result easily works out at £21 12s. Generally speaking, it is sufficient to check the results roughly—e.g., by finding out how much 850 copies would bring in.

In making the following calculations a certain difficulty arises owing to the deficiency of our coinage, which reckons nothing lower than a farthing, and to the trade custom of the booksellers by which the moiety is the only fractional part of the price of a book recognised. In consequence some of the results are not strictly in accordance with the Rule of Three.

The suggestion has been made that it is not entirely reasonable to define these royalties within the limits of 2½ and 20 per cent.; but the royalty of 2½ per cent. is in frequent use, especially where colonial editions of books published in England are concerned, and, as has been shown, in graduated royalties. Royalties of more than 20 per cent., on the other hand, are not frequent; and as these tables are intended to afford assistance to the majority of authors—to take, in fact, the place of a working guide—it would be misleading to include figures which are only applicable to exceptional cases.

SUPPLEMENT TO
THE LITERARY YEAR-BOOK (1913)

TABULATED LIST OF THE BOOKS
CONTAINED IN NINETY-TWO DIFFERENT SERIES OF CHEAP
REPRINTS

TABULATED LIST OF THE CONTENTS OF CHEAP SERIES OF REPRINTS

NOTE.

SERIES of Cheap Reprints of Books (dictionaries and similar reference-books not included) likely to be of interest to the general reader are analysed in the following Tables, and the books they contain are indexed under the surnames of their Authors. The price rarely exceeds 5s.

The Lists are taken from the Catalogues of the Publishers concerned, and each series is indicated by an initial letter (A to Zd). The key to this alphabet will be found on pages iv to x, where the following particulars of each series are given in tabular form: (1) Reference-letter; (2) number of volumes published (to November, 1912); (3) Publisher's name and address; (4) size of the books in inches; (5) prices and styles of binding.

In the Lists themselves (pages xi to xlii)—

A numeral (2, 3, etc.) after the reference-letter indicates the number of volumes in which the book is issued. Where no numeral is added, the book is issued in one volume.

An asterisk (*) after the reference-letter indicates that the book is incomplete (Selections, Extracts, etc.).

A dagger (†) after the reference-letter indicates that more than one book is bound up in the same volume.

Mere cheap reprints of copyright books are not included, as competitive editions of such books do not exist; but in all cases where non-copyright editions differ from the copyright edition, care has been taken to indicate this fact by adding at length the Publisher's name and the price of the copyright edition or editions.

All modern fiction and all juvenile literature are also excluded.

Information as to omissions or mistakes will be extremely welcome, and should be addressed to the Editor of The Literary Year-Book. In the meantime it is hoped that these Lists will continue to merit the appreciation which they have hitherto received at the hands of book-buyers among the public and in the trade.
